U.S. going after students who failed to repay loans

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you borrowed money from Uncle Sam to get through college and neglected to pay him back, there may soon be a bill collector looking for you.

The government, getting tough with some 390,000 recipients of federally insured student loans who never paid them off, is turning over about $430 million in bad debts to private collection agencies.

So, if you're among the one in six federal loan recipients who defaulted since the program began nine years ago, there's the prospect that your credit rating may be jeopardized unless you pay up.

The Office of Education, part of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, has been trying to collect on the loans, but hasn't been successful, so it's calling in the pros.

If you're one of those in default, though, you'll be given one last chance to repay before your file is turned over to a collecter, says a federal official.

"We want to give them a chance to pay because, if their files go to collectors, we want them to know what they are getting into," says Leo Kornfeld, deputy HEW commissoner for student finance assistance.

"They could be jeopardizing their future credit ratings and could have trouble later getting mortgages, credit cards or car loans."

Kornfeld said the decision to use private collection agencies is "rooted in our firm conviction that those who are able but unwilling to pay their debts do a grave injustice to the American public who provided them with an opportunity for education.

"Unfortunately, there is an attitude on many campuses that this is government money, it's a soft touch and you can get out of paying it back," Kornfeld said in an interview.

"This will almost be an educational lesson in a way," he said. "A part of growing up is learning that you have to pay off your debts."

Kornfeld said the response to his department's invitation to private organizations to bid for the first collection contract has been "overwhelming."

The winning bidder will be required to locate the negligent borrowers and set up a schedule for them to repay the government.

If unsuccessful, the collector will recommend to the government other measures it can take, including legal action.

Kornfeld said the first contract will be awarded and files sent to the collection agency by December. The contracts will prohibit unethical harassment tactics, he added.

Kornfeld said the collection agencies will work for a percentage of payments collected. No additional federal money will be used to finance the program, he said.

"The exact percentage they will get has not been worked out, but we are told the average fee is 25 to 30 per cent — more for older accounts and less for new ones," Kornfeld said.

"We will start with one company, but probably will get more," he said.

The collection contract will apply only to the Federal Insured Student Loan Program, under which the federal government has directly insured about half of all loans in the Guaranteed Student Loan Program. The rest are guaranteed by 27 state and private agencies, some of which already use private collectors, Kornfeld said.

The private agencies will supplement 106 federal collectors and others "who have not been very successful because most are not trained collection people," Kornfeld said.

Idi Amin reported in coma

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — President Idi Amin of Uganda was reported by one of his top aides today to be "in a coma" after undergoing surgery in a Kampala hospital for an undisclosed ailment.

Robert Astles, British-born confidant of the 51-year-old president, said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press in Nairobi he did not have further details.

Asked the reason for Amin's operation, he replied: "We don't exactly know. But he's in a coma. We believe he'll pull out of it. I'm going over to the hospital right now to see what's happening."

Astles was speaking from his office in Kampala. He is a white Ugandan citizen married to a black Ugandan, Mary Astles, who is Ugandan minister of culture.

Earlier today, Uganda radio announced that Amin underwent the operation in Kampala's Nulago Hospital by a Soviet surgeon. The broadcast said the president was accompanied to the hospital by the Soviet ambassador on Wednesday. Dr. Feodor Senkof was identified as the surgeon.

Astles said he did not know whether the comatose state was a normal after-effect of anesthesia, or whether it was induced by postoperative complications.

Pressure mounts on Lance to quit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's chief banking regulator today told a Senate committee he would have endorsed Bert Lance as budget director only if certain Lance had corrected some of his practices as a Georgia banker.

Noting that his office had ordered the Calhoun First National Bank, headed by Lance, to correct questionable management practices that included permitting officers to write overdrafts on their checking accounts, John G. Heimann, comptroller of the currency, characterized Lance as "a very successful banker... His attention to detail clearly leaves something to be desired."

Heimann was the opening witness at hearings by the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee into Lance's financial dealings.

Lance is scheduled to testify next week.

While President Carter was described as remaining firm in his support of his budget director, Lance was coming under increasing pressure to resign.

Lance and other directors of the Calhoun bank signed an agreement in December 1975 to correct management practices criticized by federal bank examiners.

U.S., Canada announce agreement on natural gas pipeline proposal

$10 billion plan is biggest energy project in history

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter and Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau announced today agreement on construction of a $10 billion pipeline across the Canadian Yukon to carry natural gas from Alaska to the lower 48 states.

"This joint undertaking will be the largest single private energy project in history," they said in a joint statement issued by the White House.

Carter and Trudeau said "major benefits will accrue to both countries" from the pipeline. They said it will give Canada greater ability to develop its own gas reserves, particularly in the frontier regions of the Mackenzie Delta.

"The U.S., in turn, will have the enormous benefit of new natural gas supplies from the North Slope of Alaska at a significantly lower cost-of-service price than could have been achieved through an all-U.S. route," they said.

They said they hoped to sign a detailed agreement next week.

"After the agreement is signed, each of us intends to submit our decisions to our respectived legislative bodies for the appropriate authorizations and assurances," the President and the prime minister said. "We are both hopeful the project will be approved."

Democratic Whip John Brademas of Indiana said Carter and his advisers told him and other House leaders during a meeting in the Roosevelt Room at the White House that the trans-Canada "route would deliver gas more cheaply and cleanly and equitably than the alternate route" through Alaska.

White House officials said details of the agreement were on their way to Congress as required by law. Congress has 60 days either to let Carter's decision stand or reject it. The Senate Energy Committee has scheduled a hearing on the pipeline route for Sept. 26.

Brademas said the route through Canada would be acceptable to the House.

Trudeau attended the signing of Carter's new Panama Canal on Wednesday and the White House state dinner Wednesday night to celebrate the signing.

Carter had hoped to inform Congress of his choice of two competing pipeline proposals — the one crossing Canada and an "all-American" route through Alaska and then south using liquified-gas tankers — by Wednesday, the day Congress returned from its summer recess.

Carter signs canal treaty, but now facing battle for support

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration has Latin American backing for the new Panama Canal treaty, but the support of the American people and Congress is still in doubt.

After the colorful treaty-signing ceremony, attended by 27 visiting leaders, the spotlight is focusing on opponents of the pact.

With public opinion polls showing only minority support for the treaty, Carter faces an uphill fight in his bid to convince two-thirds of the Senate that the accord is in the national interest.

American officials say the President is expected to use three main arguments in his campaign for the treaty.

He is expected to stress the international support the treaty enjoys, a point amply demonstrated Wednesday night.

The 27 foreign leaders were at the Organization of American States headquarters to watch Carter and Panamanian head of government Omar Torrijos mark the formal end of 13 years of negotiation with the signing.

The officials said Carter will also seek support by campaigning against the present treaty, which dates from the turn of the century.

He told the OAS gathering, "That treaty, drafted in a world so different from ours, has become an obstacle to better relations with Latin America."

At a White House dinner for the visiting hemispheric dignitaries after the OAS ceremony, Carter noted that no Panamanian had read the 1903 treaty before it was signed.

The third point Carter will use in the coming weeks focuses on the provision in the treaty guaranteeing the United States the right to ensure canal neutrality even after Panama assumes control of the waterway at the end of this century.

Carter has spoken out often in support of the treaty since the conceptual agreement was signed in Panama four weeks ago.

Toddler, trying to rescue his dog, struck by train

A 1½-year-old toddler was seriously injured when struck by an eastbound Southern Pacific freight train while attempting to rescue his small black-and-white dog from the railroad tracks between Bon View and Cucamonga avenues in Ontario early this morning.

The little boy, Brett Gregory Kozine, son of Mrs. Susan Kozine of 1030 E. Holt Blvd., was listed in fair condition with a head injury at Ontario Community Hospital.

Officer Ted Desormiers of the Ontario Police Department said the little boy "is very, very fortunate to be alive."

The officer said that about 8 a.m. the child managed to unlock the door of his mother's mobile home and let his small dog outside. The boy, according to witnesses, chased the dog south through the park and through an open gate near the railroad tracks.

The train engineer, Willis Terry Welch, said he was driving the train eastbound at approximately 45 miles an hour when he saw what he thought was a small bush on the tracks ahead of him east of Bon View Avenue.

The engineer said that on second glance he saw the bush actually was a small dog running eastbound between the tracks.

He said he saw the little boy kneeling over the tracks trying to grab the dog.

Welch said he immediately hit all the train's emergency brakes but could not stop the huge machine in time to avoid hitting the child.

Desormiers said the boy was struck in the back of the head by the train's cow plate and knocked backwards some 14 feet.

The dog was run over and killed.

When the train stopped, conductor Cliff Hudson saw the child had been seriously injured and ran to a nearby home on the north side of Main Street to call for police and an ambulance.

The boy was treated by paramedics at the scene and rushed to the Ontario hospital.

Mrs. Kozine said she was sleeping and was unaware that her son had managed to unlock the door and run outside after the little dog.

Police are reporting the incident not as a traffic accident but as a medical assist because it occurred on private property off of any highway.

In apprehending burglar-rapist

Upland police ask public's help

By TONY AULT
PB Staff Writer

Upland police are asking for public assistance in locating a burglar-rapist who in the last five months has reportedly raped five women and burglarized numerous apartments in the Upland area.

Capt. Merle Arneson said that Ontario police believe the same man has raped several Ontario women and burglarized a number of apartments in their city.

Arneson said the burglar has struck only apartments, primarily in the early morning hours while the residents were asleep.

"He has, on occasion, been so bold as to step over sleeping people to get to the victim's wallet or loose money," said Arneson.

In each incident, the burglar entered the apartment through an unlocked window by removing the screen.

"It does not appear as though he pre-selects his victims, as the rape victims do not have any common connection and range in age from their late teens to mid 40s.

"On each assault, he has used a knife as a weapon and at times, taken knives from victim's kitchens," Arneson said.

On two occasions, Special Task Force officers were used in Upland and Ontario in futile attempts to capture the burglar-rapist.

The wanted man is described as a black, 20 to 25 years of age, 5 feet 7 to 5 feet 10, 150 to 170 pounds. He often wears tank-top shirts and a dark watch cap.

"Although no victim has been seriously injured at this time, the potential for such injury is present as the suspect appears sincere in his threats of bodily harm," said Arneson.

Residents are requested to contact their local police departments in the event anyone matching the description is seen loitering or acting suspicious in any manner.

To aid in the apprehension of the rapist, any future victims are asked to notify law enforcement agencies immediately as any delay will aid in the escape of the rapist.

Arneson said the burglar-rapist has struck ground-level apartments in the Upland area west of Euclid Avenue and south of Foothill Boulevard. The attacks occurred between 10 p.m. and 5 a.m.

Arneson urged all citizens to keep doors and windows locked when they go to bed at night.

Officials hoping to stall Omnitrans operation shutdown

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

Officials in San Bernardino County are moving to stall a possible shutdown of the Omnitrans transit operation or a massive increase in property taxes by 1979-80.

The Omnitrans board of directors unanimously agreed Wednesday to contact local legislators about attaching a rider to current legislation. The rider, if successful, would delay for at least three years provisions of the state transit funding bill that dictates cutbacks of 75 and 50 per cent respectively in the fifth and sixth year of a transit operation.

The loss of dollars from the state bill allocating funds for local transit could prove fatal to the life of Omnitrans. In order to raise the deficit of $305,000 in 1978-79 and $1,155,000 in 1979-80, the participating entities in the countywide transit system would be forced to initiate large property taxes or farebox increases, or close shop.

The hue and cry from city and county representatives on the Omnitrans board followed a report from Arnie Franz, administrative assistant with Omnitrans. The cutback in state funds earmarked for local transit operations in the fifth and subsequent years of operation is further complicated by state and federal requirements demanding that Omnitrans maintain the service levels at the current two-year average and hold the line on the maintenance of effort going into that operation.

For the West End, which increased its service level by 130 per cent this year, such requirements would probably eliminate public transit.

Ontario City Manager Roger Hughbanks said the provision in Senate Bill 325 is "ludicrous. The legislation passed an act to get transit and then the provisions cut it down. It's ridiculous that the whole thrust of the bill was to get transit and now we must either cut it back or go out of business."

Paul Marsh, general manager of Omnitrans, said the American Public Transit Association has been fighting for three years to get the law changed, but the bill's author Sen. James R. Mills, D-40th Dist. refused to consent to any change.

Mayor Bob Holcomb of San Bernardino said Mills' reasoning on the cutback provision was that local transit dollars would be "up for grabs" for employe organizations and that local officials would give in to union demands. At one point, bus drivers were making a salary of $40,000 annually, Holcomb added.

"This provision hasn't impacted enough cities yet to get people really worrying about it. We knew about it for a couple of years, but we didn't worry because it was not a brush fire. Now it is a brush fire and we must do something about it," Holcomb said.

Mayor Harold Hayes of Montclair suggested that the group "work vigorously and make an exerted effort" to get the law changed.

"It boils down to the survival of public transit itself," said Councilwoman Eileen Carter of Chino. "We're in peril individually as cities as well as a region on transit."

Hughbanks charged that the present law is "counterproductive to transit. It's ridiculous to have all this money for public transportation and end up putting it into streets and roads."

Holcomb suggested that it would be easier to get an amendment to the present law rather than trying to change the attitude of the bill's author. He offered a motion urging legislators to get an amendment, or rider, on the appropriate bill currently going through the state Assembly. The rider would be an emergency measure to postpone for three years implementation of the cutback provision on SB 325 for counties under 800,000 population.

This cutback could "cause serious disruption of transit operations just getting off the ground. With a strong push and determination we can impress our legislative representatives on how important this is," Holcomb said.

A delegation of representatives from the 14 cities and county will journey soon to Sacramento for conferences with Sen. Walter Stiern, D-16th Dist.; Sen. Robert Presley, D-34th Dist. and chairman of the Senate Transportation Committee; Sen. Ruben Ayala, D-32nd Dist.; Assemblyman William McVittie, D-65th Dist. and Assemblyman Jerry Lewis, R-67th Dist.

Beaux Art Ball scheduled in S.D.

Costumed partygoers will kick off the first season of San Dimas Theatre Co. Friday night with a Beaux Art Ball.

Dinner dancers will convene at Plummer Community Center in the civic center complex for a 7 p.m. to 1 a.m. affair. Prizes will be awarded the most unique costumes.

Workshops in children's theater and voice production began Tuesday at Ekstrand School as kickoff activities in the new company which also will produce several plays during the 1977-78 season beginning in late November or early December.

Other workshops also will open soon, according to company secretary Sandy Schoonover. Volunteers are running the new theater company in conjunction with San Dimas Parks and Recreation Department.

Assembly passes bill to extend union rights

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Union rights would be extended for nearly 90,000 state employes, under a bill that has passed the state Assembly with little opposition.

The floor sponsor, Assemblyman Howard Berman, D-Beverly Hills, called the bill "a little weak" during debate Wednesday. He said it contained less than full collective bargaining rights — but it would give public employe labor groups their most important victory in two years.

It does not authorize public employe strikes, which have been ruled illegal by courts.

On a 68-6 vote, the Assembly sent the bill, SB 839 by Sen. Ralph Dills, D-Gardena, back to the Senate for action on amendments.

Of California's 1.5 million public employes, only the 350,000 who work in schools have the right to choose exclusive union representatives and require their employers to bargain about wages and working conditions. They won that right under 1975 legislation.

State briefs

Murrieta clinic probe

RIVERSIDE (AP) — A nationwide investigation is under way into the practices of a controversial Murrieta Hot Springs clinic that allegedly promised to cure cancer patients with a diet of water and lemon juice.

The clinic became the center of controversy last month after the parents of 7-year-old Kimberly Cox of Milwaukee, Wis., tried to remove her from a Milwaukee hospital where she was being treated for leukemia and take her to the Murrieta clinic. The hospital refused to let her go.

The California Department of Consumer Affairs said Wednesday that A.J. Rudd & Associates, which operates the clinic, was being investigated for allegedly practicing medicine without a license, physician incompetence and illegal cancer treatment.

The department said its Board of Medical Quality Assurance was cooperating with other boards across the country in an investigation of at least 780 "testers" trained at the clinic to take urine and saliva samples from patients.

The "testers" analyze the samples, then send their findings to the Murrieta clinic, which recommends treatment.

Families evacuated

CANOGA PARK (AP) — Some 60 to 70 families briefly evacuated their homes early today hour after a load of chlorine gas spilled from a truck and began leaking toxic fumes, police said.

Police conducted a voluntary evacuation of families in a 20block area when two 150-pound cylinders ruptured after falling from the flatbed truck shortly before midnight.

The vehicle was carrying 26 tanks of chlorine gas and one of alcohol from the McKesson Chemical Co. in the City of Industry, authorities said.

Phone refunds ordered

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Rate reductions and $14 million in refunds were ordered for 7.4 million Pacific Telephone Co. customers as a result of an admitted error of the state Public Utilities Commission.

The PUC ordered Wednesday that Pacific Telephone make the rate cuts and repay its customers. The phone company said it would ask the PUC to reconsider the ruling it branded as "yet another example of capricious regulation in California."

The commission said it was correcting a 21-month-old error that resulted in the phone company being granted a $65.2 million rate hike.

That December 1975 decision had been appealed by the City of San Diego, and the PUC reopened the case.

"Upon rehearing and reconsideration we find that we were in error," the PUC said in pointing out its mistake in estimating intrastate telephone revenues.

LNG bill approved

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Assembly has approved a bill to expedite the remote siting of California's first liquefied natural gas terminal — but an attempt is expected to make populated areas eligible.

A 73-4 vote Wednesday sent the compromise bill back to the Senate for action on amendments.

But some senators are expected to try to break the compromise by amending it to allow populated areas to remain under consideration as sites.

Sen. Alfred Alquist, D-San Jose, the author and a participant in the compromise, said in an interview he will resist Senate amendments.

Police shooting

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In the wake of a Police Commission review of killings by policemen, an officer has wounded an unarmed 15-yearold boy is accused of stripping a car, police said.

Officer Gerald D. Williams, a six-year veteran of the force, wounded the boy in his buttocks Wednesday with one of two shots, Lt. Charles Higbie said Wednesday.

Higbie, who investigates shootings by officers, said the 32-year-old Williams claimed he fired after hearing one of the fleeing boys shout "Shoot him." However, a search of Fred's Auto Body Shop in Pacoima has turned up no weapon, Higbie said.

The wounded boy was reported in stable condition at County-USC Medical Center.

Reagan blasts signing of treaty

Opposition in protest marches

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan said today if the Senate ratifies the new Panama Canal treaty the Soviet Union and Cuba may be encouraged to expand their influence in Panama.

Urging rejection of the treaty signed by President Carter and Panamanian officials Wednesday night, Reagan said, "it should never surprise us that whenever the United States withdraws its presence or its strong interest from any area, the Soviets are ready, willing and often able to exploit the situation.

"Can we believe that the Panama Canal is any exception?"

Reagan, the former California governor who unsuccessfully sought the Republican presidential nomination last year, was among a series of treaty opponents testifying before the Senate Judiciary subcommittee.

The signing of the Panama Canal treaty attracted various opposition groups to the capital as Washington played host to one of the largest gatherings of foreign leaders in modern times.

Some of the groups rallied here to voice their opposition to the canal treaty itself, signed in a gala ceremony Wednesday night. But others protested the presence of Latin American heads of state they considered to be violators of human rights. Others demonstrated in the streets.

Reagan said although the treaty does not call for the United States to relinquish sovereignty until the year 2000, "there is nothing to prevent a Panamanian regime from deciding one day to nationalize the canal and to demand that we leave immediately."

Reagan said while the military Joint Chiefs of Staff are firmly supporting the treaty, retired senior military leaders still believe the waterway is important to U.S. military and strategic interests.

"Our continued presence at the canal inhibits potential adventurers from trying to make international trouble there far better than would a piece of paper granting us the right to return after we have once departed," Reagan said.

Reagan said while he opposes the treaty as negotiated with Panama he would support a greater Panamanian role in setting policy for the Canal Zone.

He suggested giving the Panamanians permanent seats on a Canal Zone governing board.

Reagan also urged a 10-year canal improvement program which he said would help the Panamanian economy and make the canal capable of handling all but a few of the largest oil tankers.

Reagan said the Panamanian government which negotiated the treaty is among the most repressive in Latin America. Yet, he said, Carter has not listed Panama among those countries failing to provide human rights to its citizens.

Reagan said it is hypocritical for Carter to demand human rights improvements in some countries, but to ignore the question in negotiating a Panama Canal treaty.

About 200 persons representing a coalition of conservative political groups opposing the treaty demonstrated in front of the Capitol on Wednesday and later staged a rally near the Pan American Union where Carter and Panama's military leader, Gen. Omar Torrijos, formally signed the documents under which Panama will assume control of the canal in 2000.

A central theme of those demonstrations was that Carter is collaborating with Torrijos, called by Rep. Robert Dornan, R-Calif., an "unstable, immoral, venal leftist dictator of the highest order." Of the treaty, Dornan said, "the sins of Richard Nixon pale in comparison to what is being done to the American people."

Another group — a coalition of about 30 organizations concerned with human rights — demonstrated in Lafayette Park, across from the White House, to protest Carter's hosting of Latin American dictators.

Then they crossed Pennsylvania Avenue under the watchful eye of police to march and chant in front of the executive mansion. About 2,000 persons took part in what was one of the largest rallies at the White House since the Vietnam war protest days, but the group was orderly and thinned out well before midnight.

Church bells rang, car horns blared and hundreds of Panamanians paraded through the streets Wednesday night to celebrate the signing of the new Panama Canal treaties.

American opponents of the pact marched in black through the Canal Zone, and Panamanian opponents clashed with police Wednesday afternoon outside the Foreign Ministry.

Close vote seen in New York

NEW YORK (AP) — With "undecided" leading the polls, today's mayoral primaries were expected to be close, following the costliest campaign in city history.

Six Democrats sought to unseat Mayor Abraham D. Beame, who claims he saved the city from bankruptcy. Beame and three other candidates are clustered within reach of the two spots in a runoff scheduled for Sept. 19, according to the polls.

But polls in the final weeks of the campaign indicated that as much as one-fifth of the electorate was undecided, despite extensive campaigning throughout the summer and a television blitz that brought primary expenditures over the $4 million mark.

Officials predicted that about one-third of the city's voters would turn out.

The last of a series of debates that saw the campaign degenerate into bitterness ended less than five hours before polls opened at 6 a.m. with a disorganized television discussion. The debate contained little of the acrimony that marked earlier confrontations.

On the Democratic side, attention was focused on Beame, former Congresswoman Bella Abzug, Rep. Edward Koch and New York Secretary of State Mario Cuomo, backed by Gov. Hugh Carey.

Given little chance of qualifying for the runoff were Rep. Herman Badillo, Manhattan Borough President Percy Sutton and businessman Joel Harnett.

Republican voters were choosing between state Sen. Roy Goodman and former radio personality Barry Farber in a contest that produced a nearly endless torrent of charges and countercharges.

Death threat to victim of West German kidnap

BONN, West Germany (AP) — The kidnapers of industry leader Hanns Martin Schleyer have threatened to execute him unless the search for him is halted, the West German government revealed today.

The execution threat was contained in a ransom letter the government made public 24 hours after it failed to meet a deadline set by the kidnapers for the release of 11 jailed terrorists.

That deadline expired at 8 a.m. Wednesday, but hours later the government demanded that the kidnapers send it a tape recording of Schleyer answering personal question to prove he was alive.

Chino man is third jailed in slayings

A Chino man, arrested Wednesday night by Chino police, is the third suspect taken into custody in connection with an Aug. 31, shooting in Fontana which resulted in the death of two youths and the wounding of three others.

Booked in the West End jail for investigation of murder was Ernesto (Kimba) Garcia of 12675 Ross St. He was picked up by Chino police near Monte Vista Avenue and C Street on a warrant from the San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department.

Deputies earlier had taken into custody two 16-year-olds, formerly of Chino but living in Fontana, in connection with the shootings. Each is charged with two counts of murder and three counts of attempted murder.

The two young suspects are in custody of San Bernardino County juvenile authorities.

Homicide detectives said the shootings occurred about 9 p.m. near Cherry and Boyle avenues in Fontana and resulted in the deaths of Ronald Compasano, 15, and Nelson Santiago, 18, both of Fontana. Three other youths were wounded.

Detectives believe the shootings were gang-related and said it appeared the five youths shot were ambushed by a carload of other youths as they drove into the Cherry and Boyle avenues neighborhood.

Link liquor, deformed newborns

BOSTON (AP) — Women who drink heavily are twice as likely to bear sickly, deformed babies as mothers who use liquor moderately or not at all, a new study shows.

"There is definitey increased risk to offspring of women who drink heavily during pregnancy," said the study in today's New England Journal of Medicine.

The study said the health of the babies of moderate drinkers — women who drink more than once a month but do not fit into the category of heavy drinkers — and teetotalers was virtually the same.

The findings are based on a review by Boston University doctors of the drinking habits of 633 pregnant women at Boston City Hospital.

Earlier studies have warned of the dangers of drinking to the unborn, but this is the first report that measures the odds of this damage occurring.

Dr. Eileen M. Oullette, who directed the study, said she recommends that women give up drinking completely while pregnant.

"It's unknown whether there is a safe amount that can be ingested," she said in an interview. "Alcohol crosses the placenta and goes directly into the baby."

Some of the women cut down on their drinking during pregnancy, but the doctors said only two of the 27 women who drank heavily throughout pregnancy had normal infants.

The study defined heavy drinkers as those who consume five or more drinks daily, or an average of more than 1½ ounces of pure alcohol a day. However, the heavy drinkers in the test consumed an average of more than 6 ounces of pure alcohol a day.

The doctors discogered a variety of abnormalities among the babies of the heavy drinkers.

Seventeen per cent of the heavy drinkers' children had serious birth defects, they said, compared with 3 per cent of the babies of nondrinkers, defined as women who drink less than once a month.

Boy drowns in Ontario backyard pool

A 6-year-old boy drowned in a backyard swimming pool while attending a party in Ontario Wednesday afternoon.

Paramedics said Michael Friedle was pulled from the bottom of a swimming pool at 1521 N. Boulder Ave. at about 5 p.m. The child was a resident of a home for mentally retarded children in Montclair.

Emergency resuscitation efforts to revive the child at the scene, first by a nurse attending the children's party and then by firemen and paramedics, failed and the child was taken to Doctors Hospital in Montclair.

Doctors' attempts to save the child also failed and he was pronounced dead about 50 minutes after being pulled from the pool.

Paramedics said it was unknown why the child, who had been seen swimming and playing in the water only minutes before, sank to the bottom of the pool.

Two hurt in car crashes

A Pomona man suffered a broken nose early Wednesday when his car jumped the curb at 12th Street and Hamilton Boulevard, crossed the sidewalk and hit a street light pole, police reported.

The driver, Manuel Romo, 21, was treated for the injury at Pomona Valley Community Hospital. Police said he was southbound on Hamilton shortly after midnight when the accident occurred.

Shortly after noon, a female motorist was hurt in a two-car collision at Towne and Harrison avenues in Pomona. The victim, Carolyn A. Ryan, 41, of Alta Loma, said she would see her private physician later. The other driver involved, Delores C. Bryan, 42, of Pomona, was not injured.

Suspect escapes from court, but is recaptured

A former Pomona man who had just been bound over for trial on 16 felony counts tried to escape from custody early Wednesday afternoon, but was recaptured in a foot chase in 100-degree heat, authorities said.

The man, Clarence Lee Myers, 21, was caught at Third and Parcells streets by Deputy Marshal James B. Brown who had chased him from the Pomona Municipal Courts Building about four blocks away.

Myers, who was outdistancing Brown at that point, stopped when Brown fired one warning shot in the air.

Authorities gave this account:

Myers was being led, handcuffed, from the courtroom where he had been bound over for trial when he suddenly fled down a hallway and out double doors at the west side of the building. Deputy Marshal Ralph LeSieur and Brown took off after him in a pursuit which led them across Mission Boulevard, north to Third Street, west to Park Avenue, through an alley and several front yards and finally to Third and Parcells.

Brown, who was running out of steam, yelled for Myers to stop and fired the warning shot. Myers stopped. LeSieur and Pomona police arrived quickly and Myers was returned to the courthouse lockup.

Authorities said it was the second time that the suspect has fled from custody. He was working in the Hall of Justice in Los Angeles while awaiting trial on another matter when he fled, they said. He was wanted for that escape when he was arrested last month in Pomona.

Myers is charged locally with being the armed man who was responsible for a recent series of Pomona motel burglaries in which several occupants were robbed, one woman was raped and several were molested.

Flare gun fired at officer; 5 arrested

Two women, a man and two juveniles are awaiting arraignment on charges of assault with a deadly weapon after a commercial flare was fired at a police car patrolling near B and Fourth streets in Chino Tuesday night.

Chino police detective Dave DeLeon was sent into the area about 10:30 p.m. after residents reported persons firing flares in the street.

DeLeon said as he drove by a group of people in the street he heard a loud "bang" and saw a red ball of fire about six inches in diameter shoot over the top of his patrol car.

He made a U-turn, returned to the group and arrested Diane Pasquel Suarez, 19, Norwalk; Helen Celia Lopez, 18, 12773 Yorba St., Chino; Freddie Valdez Jr., 20, 12579 Anthony St., Chino; and the two juveniles.

The adults were booked at West End jail. The juveniles were released to their parents pending further investigation. All were charged with suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon on a police officer.

DeLeon said that for the past several nights residents have been reporting shots and flares were being fired and other disturbances in the neighborhood.

DeLeon said after he left the area Tuesday night another police unit drove through and was the intended target of rocks and bottles.

Woman held in knife attack

A Pomona woman remained in custody today, accused of assault with a deadly weapon in a knife-attack on Cecil Menefield, 49.

The victim was stabbed in both arms and on the left side of his head as he and the suspect, Gloria Lee Houston, sat on a sofa of his apartment at 1800 W. Orange Grove Ave., police said. They quoted him as saying the woman suddenly attacked him without apparent reason just before midnight Wednesday.

Menefield was taken to a nearby fire station where he was given first aid and then was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

The weapon believed used in the attack was a 4-inch serrated kitchen knife.

SKIPS HEARING — Richard Speck, who 11 years ago murdered eight young nurses, skipped his parole hearing on Wednesday and, in a letter, used obscenities to inform the parole board he would see them next year.

Judge in rape decision ousted in recall vote

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Basing her campaign on "the right of everyone to know they will get a fair trial," attorney Moria Krueger defeated Dane County Judge Archie Simonson in a recall election sparked by his courtroom remarks on rape.

Ms. Krueger, 33, parlayed outrage at Simonson's comments linking rape and women's revealing clothing into 27,244 votes and a 35 per cent plurality Wednesday. Six candidates were on the ballot in the first judicial recall election in Wisconsin history.

Simonson, whose comments from the bench in a May 25 juvenile rape hearing attracted national attention and sparked a 35,000-signature local recall petition drive, received 25 per cent with 18,435 votes.

"I'm a little overwhelmed," Ms. Krueger said at an up-roarious celebration at a friend's home on the predominantly liberal West Side which proved to be her stronghold.

The 52-year-old Simonson said, "The verdict is in and I have no comment other than that."

However, he repeated his steadfast campaign stance that he had run not against his opponents but against the notion he should be recalled for what he said.

The judge said his plans for the future are indefinite, but indicated he would probably not try to regain his seat next spring.

"If nothing else, I can practice law," he said.

He also said he might consider joining a local citizen's campaign against the sex-for-sale business.

"It depends if they ask me or not," said Simonson at a local hall after the ballots were counted.

The controversy over Simonson stemmed from his remarks at a disposition hearing for a 15-year-old boy who pleaded no contest to delinquency in an alleged assault on a 16-year-old girl in a Madison high school.

In rejecting arguments that the boy be placed in a group home, Simonson turned him over to his parents' custody after citing daily newspaper ads for local nightclubs with nude dancing and criticizing women's no-bra and mini-skirt fashions.

"It is really wide open, and are we supposed to take an impressionable person 15 or 16 years of age who can respond to something like that and punish that person severely because they react to it normally?" the judge asked.

Wrong name

The pine vole, a small underground rodent, has been misnamed, some scientists say. They are trying to change the name of the animal, which prefers apple trees and root crops to pines, to the woodland vole.

BANK BUILDING SITE — City, civic and bank officials shovel dirt to mark the start of construction of a new Bank of America branch office at Fourth Street and Garey Avenue, Pomona. B of A construction begins

Construction began Wednesday on a $1,681,918 building for Bank of America's Pomona main office.

The project was launched with a groundbreaking at the site, 444 Garey Ave., near the branch's existing building at Garey and Fourth Street.

Pomona city officials and businessmen joined Thomas J. Williams, bank vice president and manager, in the traditional ceremony. City officials included Mayor Charles W. Bader, City Council members Georgia M. Grove, Adrian T. Wright, Benjamin Ochoa Sr. and G. Stanton Selby, City Administrator Jerrold R. Gonce, City Planner Sanford A. Sorensen, Building Official Jack West, and Police Chief Richard A. Slaght.

Representing the Pomona Chamber of Commerce board of directors were Bob Burwell, Rita Butherus, John Felton, Joe Gendron, Ed Kolodge, Charles McDaniel and Bill Williams.

Bank participants included Williams, Joseph Corey, vice president and manager of the Pomona district trust office, Noel Z. Silver, vice president and district administrator with the bank's Central and Eastern Los Angeles County regional headquarters, Thomas R. Stair, vice president with the regional credit administration, and Kenneth M. Corkill, Alfred J. Fletcher and Robert F. Winnenberg, assistant vice presidents and officers of Pomona main office.

Scheduled for completion in September 1978, the new building will be a two-story structure containing 33,858 square feet with an adjacent 80-space parking lot and an additional lot with 31 spaces across Locust Street.

The contractor is the Berry Construction Co. of Upland whose president, Dowlton M. Berry, also participated in the groundbreaking.

The building was designed by the Pomona firm, Cashion-Horie Architects, Inc. It will be of contemporary style, featuring an exterior of textured, vertically scored concrete blocks of natural color. Off-white fascias will extend around the building as overhangs to shade the bronzed glass windows and glass entranceways facing Garey Avenue and Mission Boulevard. Horizontal redwood sidings will form decorative insets between the first- and second-floor windows.

Landscaping will be an integral part of the building's overall appearance, the architects said. The landscaping will be in keeping with that of the redeveloped Civic Center nearby, with similar trees, shrubs, other plantings and exposed public walks.

Brick paving will lead into the new building and become the main floor of the lobby area.

Williams, who was appointed vice president and manager of the Pomona main office in May, said the new office will have 14,330 square feet of floor space on the first floor, 5,393 on the mezzanine and 14,162 on the second floor — a total of 33,858 square feet compared to 18,608 in the existing building.

"The Pomona main office had outgrown its present quarters," Williams said. "With the sharp increase in space, and the installation of the bank's latest line of equipment, fixtures and furnishings, we should be able to serve our customers more efficiently, conveniently and quickly."

Williams said extended hours service will be offered at four walk-up windoes to be installed outside the bank.

Trust Vice President Joe Corey said the new district trust office will be situated on the second floor of the new building. "With nearly three times our current space, we also will be able to provide improved services to the bank's trust customers," Corey said.

Pomona's first Bank of America opened its doors on Nov. 12, 1936, and was relocated to its present building at 116 E. Fourth St. on Nov. 21, 1955.

The bank opened a second branch in East Pomona in 1956. The third and fourth local branches — North Pomona and West Pomona — were opened in 1959.

Supervisors approve D.B. MAC bylaws

Bylaws governing the Diamond Bar Municipal Advisory Council (MAC) officially were approved Tuesday by the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors in the presence of four MAC members.

MAC chairman, Brenda Engdahl, vice chairman, George D. Resh, and members Don Stokes and Ronald G. Foerstel were introduced by Supervisor Pete Schabarum. A fifth member, Richard B. Vind, was not present.

Board approval of the MAC bylaws was unanimous. Bylaws outline duties of MAC members stating they are serving in an advisory capacity on matters of public health, safety, welfare, public works and planning.

Schabarum said his relationship with MAC, first such council in Los Angeles County, had been excellent.

"They are serving as a sounding board. During the past year every problem that has come before them has been resolved. These bylaws give them additional tools with which to do their work."

Mrs. Engdahl said MAC serves 25,000 people in a 12-square-mile area, was paid nothing and received no county funds.

On Aug. 17, 1976 the Board of Supervisors adopted a resolution calling for the special election to establish the Diamond Bar MAC.

Queen contestants for fair are sought

The search has started for a new "Senorita Aldea Mexicana 1977" (Queen of the Mexican Village) to reign over the many fiestas at the Los Angeles County Fair which runs from Sept. 16 through Oct. 2.

Senorita Pequena and Senorito Pequeno, aged 4 to 10, also will be chosen as junior queen and king.

Contestants for the queen contest must be single, between 16 and 26, and have Mexican ancestry on at least one side of the family.

Ability to speak Spanish is not required, nor is performing talent, although either could add points to the contestant's score.

Judging for the juniors, who must also have Mexican ancestry on at least one side of the family, will be held Saturday, Sept. 17 at 10 a.m. on the Mexican Village stage.

Selection of the queen will follow.

Lovely Teri Escandon, the 1976 Mexican Village queen, will crown her successor and give her 100 American dollars or the equivalent in Mexican pesos.

The junior king and queen each will receive half of that amount in the same way.

Contestants should send their name, address, age, and if available, a photograph, to Vance Graham, in care of the Los Angeles County Fair, Box 2250, Pomona 91766, or to Graham at Box 2497, Hollywood 90028.

PB to offer new comic

Jeff MacNelly, a prize-winning political cartoonist whose work appears regularly on the editorial pages of the Progress Bulletin, has branched out into doing a comic strip about a bunch of birds.

The strip is called Shoe and it will begin appearing on the weekday comic page of this newspaper starting Monday and in the Sunday color comics beginning Sept. 18.

Shoe is short for P. Martin Shoemaker, a bird who is editor of the Treetops Tattler Tribune. The strip features other bird characters, including the Perfesser, who has been between opportunities since 1938 when he got his doctorate from Rutgers in dirigible aerodynamics; Loon, described as a nice guy who's not playing with a full deck; Roz, the resident barperson and shrink; and Skyler, the Perfesser's nephew.

The creator of Shoe, Jeff MacNelly, is cartoonist for the News Leader in Richmond, Va. His editorial cartoons, which won him a Pulitzer prize five years ago at the age of 24, are now carried by more than 300 newspapers. Shoe is his first venture into the comic strip field of cartooning.

On the same day MacNelly's new comic strip starts appearing in the Progress Bulletin and other daily newspapers throughout the country, MacNelly will be appearing on the Today show which is televised nationally.

LITTLE QUEEN — Robin Vercruse, 7, was recently chosen as "Little Miss San Dimas" during that city's 17th birthday celebration. Robin is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kent Vercruse of San Dimas. The city's celebration featured a giant barbecue.

Host families for cast sought

Area families are being asked to play host to the 95 members of the Up With People cast which will perform at the Los Angeles County Fair Sept. 21 through 25 at Pomona.

A host family provides room, board and transportation to and from the fairgrounds each day.

Brenda Colegrove and Gian Carlos Carmelo, from Venezuela, are an advance team of the famous troupe, and are staying with Lenore and George Marschall of Alta Loma.

Carmelo describes the troupe's staying with local families as having "educational dividends without parallel."

The Marschalls hosted six boys of the 1976 fair cast in their home.

Mrs. Marschall said that she, her husband, and their children, Andrew, 14, and Pamela, 15, found the youngsters "absolutely delightful and we certainly enjoyed having them with us for eight days."

Families interested in playing host may contact either member of the advance team at 987-3459, or the Pomona Chamber of Commerce at 622-1256.

The Up With People concert is described as a fast-paced highly motivated program of music and dancing, including a broad range of original, contemporary, and traditional vocal material backed by an instrumental section of guitars, percussion, piano, and brass.

Concerts, free on the grandstand stage, will be performed nightly at 8 p.m., and on Sunday at 2 and 7:30 p.m.

Chino park bond election slated

Chino voters will be asked to support a $3.5 million park bond election this November that will provide funds for the construction of five new parks in the city.

If the bond election is approved, however, it will mean higher taxes for property owners.

State law requires all municipalities to establish a proposed tax rate if a bond election is successful to let voters know how much the bonds might cost them.

The Chino City Council Tuesday night, in conformance with the law, established a special 25-cent tax rate per $100 of assessed valuation as the cost to citizens if the park bond election passes.

A typical homeowner whose house is valued at $50,000 would pay approximately $30 per year in extra taxes to support the park bonds if they pass.

Voters will go to the polls Nov. 8 to decide the issue.

City officials have expressed optimism the park bond election will be successful.

Property tax rally planned

A rally on property tax limitation will be held Saturday in Taylor Hall, 1717 N. Indian Hill Blvd., Claremont.

The rally, from 7 to 10 p.m., is open to the public.

The speaker will be Howard Jarvis, Los Angeles attorney who is state chairman of the Unified Organization of Taxpayers.

Jarvis and other speakers will explain the People's Petition to Control Taxation, an initiative constitutional amendment to limit property taxes which they hope to get on the ballot next year.

The group will have petitions available at the rally which must be returned to the sponsors by Nov. 25.

The initiative contains several tax limitations, including requiring a two-thirds vote of the state legislature to enact any change in state taxes designed to increase revenues.

Additional information about the rally may be obtained by calling 982-6490 or 983-5673.

Political arena

A bill by SEN. RUBEN S. AYALA, D-32nd Dist., Chino, requiring every death at any of the 11 state mental hospitals be referred to a coroner's inquiry Tuesday was signed into law by Governor Brown.

Ayala proposed the bill earlier this year in the wake of extensive investigations in the state mental hospitals of some 400 deaths over a three-year period.

The bill does not require autopsies, which are left to the coronors.

Department of Health spokesman Bob Nance said such coroner's inquiries, as are required under the new law, have been strict policy for more than a year.

Nance said about 500 patients die annually in the state's 11 mental hospitals.

ASSEMBLYMAN BILL LANCASTER, R-62nd Dist., West Covina, voted for the measure to increase school funding which passed in the legislature, and against the measure which would provide property tax rebates to some and tax increases to others, which was defeated.

"While the school finance bill provides some tax relief, the property tax reform measure did not contain anything close to the type of tax relief residents have been calling for," Lancaster said.

The school finance bill was designed by the legislature to comply with the state court's Serrano-Priest decision. This decision requires that the amount spent per student be substantially equal. The bill will be financed out of current and future surplus funds.

The property tax rebate bill would have provided rebates through state income tax to homeowners, based on income and assessed valuation of their property. "The bill contained various tax increase provisions that could be as much as $1.5 billion in five years," said Lancaster.

CALIFORNIA VOTERS will be asked next June whether they wish to remove from the state Constitution a limit of 7 per cent on interest paid on judgments rendered in state courts.

The issue will be placed on the ballot due to the passage in the legislature last week of Senate Constitutional Amendment 18, authored by SEN. OMER L. RAINS, D-Ventura.

All constitutional amendments passed by the Legislature must be placed on the ballot for voters to decide.

If approved, the amendment will allow the legislature to set the rate from time to time, basing its determination on various economic factors. However, the legislature could not set a rate higher than 10 per cent.

Preschool program taking enrollments

The state preschool program, which serves boys and girls 4 to 5 years old from low-income families in the Pomona Unified School District, is now accepting enrollments.

Classes are limited to 18 children. They are taught at Allison, Arroyo, Kellogg, Lexington and San Jose Elementary schools.

Preference is given to children of pre-kindergarten age and children with special needs.

The school is a parent-participation program. Parents are required to work in a classroom two hours a week and attend parent meetings.

Classes are held daily from 8:30 a.m. to noon. A morning snack is served.

Judy Sneed, preschool director, said the program focuses on preparing boys and girls for kindergarten. It stresses self-concept, learning skills, creativity, physical development and basic concepts such as colors, shapes, sizes, letters and numbers.

Registrations may be made by calling 623-5251, ext. 317, between 8 a.m. and 3 p.m. Monday through Friday, or by bringing birth certificate, immunization records and proof of income to Portable C at Kingsley Elementary School, 1170 Washington St., Pomona.

Pomonan released

A young Pomona man, arrested on a manslaughter charge in connection with the traffic death Aug. 31 of his brother, has been released without charge.

Sheriff's deputies said that after studying their 12-page report of the accident which killed Daniel J. Reza, 16, the district attorney's office rejected their application for a complaint against the driver, Gilbert Montoya, 21. That action closed the case.

The accident occurred in the 200 block of Cannon Drive in San Dimas that night. The victim was a passenger in a pickup truck driven by Montoya. The pickup ran off the road and overturned, killing Reza, of 1863 First St., La Verne, outright.

Montoya, of 573 W. Center St., subsequently was arrested on a vehicular manslaughter charge by deputies who blamed the accident on alleged excessive speed and reckless driving.

But in rejecting the application for a complaint, the district attorney's representative found there was no criminal elements to the accident, deputies said.

Parent course offered

The Firehouse Community Services Center in Montclair will offer a course in "systematic training for effective parenting" beginning Wednesday.

The purpose of the nine-session course is to develop effective skills as a parent. It will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. and is for San Bernardino County residents only.

There is a cost of $6 per session maximum, but there is a sliding scale of reduced fees for persons who cannot afford the full amount.

The center will also offer a class in assertion training to develop social and interpersonal skills. This class begins Sept. 20 and will be held at the same time and fee.

The Firehouse is located at 10585 Central Ave.

Weight program to start

A free eight-week weight control program for teenagers will start Friday at the West End Health Center, 325 E. C St., Ontario. The group will meet from 3:30 to 5 p.m. each Friday.

This program will provide knowledge about foods and teach techniques to modify behavior and change eating habits that cause overweight.

The contribution that increased physical activity makes to weight loss will be discussed. The program is being offered by the San Bernardino Public Health Department through the health education office.

Enrollment will be limited and preregistration is required. Persons may call 988-1327 for further information.

Tears trail

In the winter of 1838-39, the Creek and Cherokee Indians who lived in Georgia were forced to move beyond the Mississippi, so that settlers could cultivate the land. During that trek westward, nearly one out of four died, leaving behind what came to be known as the Cherokee Trail of Tears.

Ceramic painting offered

The Diamond Bar-Walnut YMCA will hold classes in ceramic painting for 7th to 9th grade students on Mondays, 7 to 8 p.m., beginning Oct. 3, and continuing for a three-month period. Registration will be taken up to Sept. 27.

The classes are designed to allow the child to examine and utilize his own creativity in the painting and antiquing of premolded plaster of every variety.

The classes will be held at M & P Plaster House, Rowland Heights and is free to all members of the YMCA. A $3.50 fee will be charged to non-members.

For further information and registration, please contact the YMCA, 400 S. Brea Canyon Rd., Diamond Bar, or call 595-5015.

His motorhome used to fly

CARDIFF (AP) — H. L. Rolland's motorhome hardly flies, despite its 471-horsepower diesel engine. But once it did — as a C46 transport.

Argonaut Airlines acquired it later, converting it into a DC-3 turbo-prop for use on commuter runs.

The plane could carry 26 passengers and a crew of three, flying as long as five hours and cruising at 150 miles an hour with its two Pratt-Whitney engines.

The wings are gone now. Smokey Rolland bought the fuselage from a Tucson, Ariz., scrap dealer and mounted it on a 40-foot chassis. He's working now to make it run right.

A retired 63-year-old flagpole painter, Rolland still must cut three feet off the thing to meet the 40-foot length limit on California highways. He plans to remove the toilet at the rear of the cabin.

Then he'll finish the exterior and correct a steering problem which he describes as minor.

The cabin will accommodate only himself and his wife because, with any more seating, "everyone will want to come for a ride," he said in a recent interview.

Inside will be a living room, a double bedroom, kitchen and electric organ. The driver will sit in the cockpit 10 feet off the ground.

Mrs. Rolland wants wings on her motor home and her husband plans to compromise with a little pair of angel wings on the roof.

The thing has cost him $8,000 already, Rolland figures, with another $5,000 needed. But "this thing is built like a battleship—it must have at least 100,000 rivets in it," he said.

"I just wanted," said Rolland proudly, "to do it for the hell of it."

Mrs. Wallace out of the governor's house

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — With her six-year marriage to Gov. George C. Wallace apparently coming to an end, Cornelia Wallace has instructed her attorneys to "do what is necessary" to protect her.

Whether that means a divorce, Mrs. Wallace, 38, wouldn't say for certain Tuesday, as she had her personal belongings moved from the executive mansion.

But Montgomery attorney Ira DeMent said that he and two other attorneys representing Mrs. Wallace — George Dean of Destin, Fla., and John Kohn of Montgomery — soon will discuss with the governor's attorney an "amicable settlement."

DeMent said the governor was told Tuesday afternoon as his wife supervised the packing of her belongings that his attorney would be contacted.

According to DeMent, Wallace's response was simply, "Fine."

Wallace's attorney, Maury Smith, was unavailable for comment.

It was Smith's name that appeared on a divorce petition that surfaced a month ago, apparently drawn up on the governor's behalf, but unsigned by anyone. Nor was it filed in any court.

The document cited "complete incompatiblity of temperament" and an "irretrievable breakdown of the marriage" as Wallace's reasons for seeking to end the marriage.

Mrs. Wallace left the executive mansion Tuesday, accompanied by DeMent and Dean. In a brief statement issued as a moving van stood ready to take her belongings from the mansion, she said:

"I have struggled a long time to preserve my marriage. I have left the mansion, for I can no longer endure the vulgarity, threats and abuse. I have instructed my lawyers to do what is necessary to protect me. I have nothing further to say at this time."

DeMent told reporters Mrs. Wallace planned to live "with friends."

Mrs. Wallace was no stranger to politics when she and Wallace were maried Jan. 4, 1971, a few days before he began his second term as governor. Her uncle, James E. "Big Jim" Folsom, was twice elected governor of Alabama.

Mrs. Wallace is the mother of two sons from a previous marriage to John Snively, whom she divorced. The governor has a son and three daughters born to his first wife, who died of cancer in May 1968 while serving as Alabama's only woman governor.

Smith to go on trial Jan. 10

SAN DIEGO (AP)— Financier C. Arnholt Smith, whose empire once included United States National Bank and the Westgate-California conglomerate, will go to trial Jan. 9, 1978, on 10 California criminal charges pending against him.

Superior Court Judge Robert W. Conyers announced the trial date Tuesday after meeting in chambers for almost two hours with prosecutors and attorneys for Smith, 78.

Conyers' ruling comes after 110 days of pretrial hearings in the Smith case that led to dismissal of all but 10 of the 64 state counts contained in an indictment returned aganst Smith in 1975.

The counts yet outstanding are five allegations of state tax evasion, four of grand theft and one of forgery.

Bicycle safety stressed

"School will be back in session soon, but the kids will be on the streets, and statistics show there is no relief from accidents," said Paul Thompson, president of Arrow Warehouse Distributors, La Verne.

Thompson is chairman of the "Care About Kids" fall driving and bicycle safety program.

The "Care About Kids" bicycle safety program is being sponsored locally by several Car Care Men automotive parts stores, where individuals and organizations may secure free supplies of automobile bumper and bicycle stickers. Thompson said incoming requests to him would be directed to the nearest Car Care Man automotive parts store. Pomona Motor Parts, La Verne Auto Parts and Car Care Parts in La Verne are participating.

Will challenge the law at his trial

He ran 'marijuana supermarket'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) -- For three years a 31-year-old, Bronx-born former Air Force clerk ran a "marijuana supermarket" here in a well-furnished Victorian home which became known to customers as "The Big Top."

"I felt it was a service to the community," said proprieter Dennis Peron, who plans to challenge marijuana laws in his upcoming trial.

His store was "a safe, friendly place where people could smoke a joint or two, take their time and decide what they want," he said.

The store was open from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m., six days a week, and closed on Sunday, "the day of rest," Peron said in an interview. Customers were free to browse about the 11-room flat, sampling merchandise and enjoying the company of fellow shoppers in a mellow environment.

Peron estimates he had about 5,000 to 6,000 active customers whom he knew by name. "They were working-class people. People who had every kind of job from construction worker to downtown bureaucrat," he said.

The inventory ranged from $75-an-ounce Columbian down to $25 Mexican, and each variety of pot was marked with signs advertising the price. "There was no dickering and no one was getting gypped," Peron said.

Narcotics authorities felt otherwise, and Peron caught a bullet in the leg during a July 28 raid when the bottom fell out of The Big Top.

The raid came after a woman who Peron didn't know knocked on the door and asked to buy a lid of marijuana. Usually he admitted only customers who had been referred to him but this time he let his guard down.

The woman turned out to be a narcotics officer who "I took for a middle-aged, downtown secretary," Peron said. After purchasing an ounce of marijuana and 20 hits of LSD in the space of a week, the woman led a narcotics squad to The Big Top.

Peron was shot and arrested with five others after he pitched a five-gallon glass bottle down a flight of stairs at an officer who was approaching.

Peron contends he never heard the plainclothes police identify themselves and thought he was being attacked by a gang of thugs — as he had twice in the previous year.

State's minimum wage back

SANTA ANA (AP) — In a decision affecting 2½ million California workers, an Orange County Superior Court judge has reinstated the state's $2.50-an-hour minimum wage and other industrial welfare rules he invalidated in March.

The decision released Tuesday by Judge Claude M. Owens declared valid most of the rules promulgated last year by the state Industrial Welfare Commission except for one requiring elevators or escalators in buildings where employes work four or more floors above or below ground.

That rule was based on speculation and not actual findings that climbing stairs for more than three floors could harm employes, Owens said.

Last March, in response to a California Manufacturers Association suit challenging the regulations, Owens issued an injunction barring enforcement of the regulations, ruling that the commission had not made the legally required statements of fact to justify the work rules.

The March injunction ordered the commission to make the statements of fact by June 1. Although the commission met the deadline, the injunction was extended until the judge could make his ruling.

The CMA had argued that the commission had failed to comply with several state and federal laws and constitutional provisions having to do with procedure followed in issuing the regulations.

But in Tuesday's ruling the judge found that, with the exception of the regulation on elevators and escalators, the commission was in compliance with the law.

CMA officials were unavailable for comment but the organization was expected to appeal any decision favorable to the state.

Regulations in the Orange County suit affect workers in manufacturing, post-harvest industries, freezing and preserving industries and the office, professional, technical and clerical sectors.

Rules for workers in several other categories have been challenged in suits filed in four other counties.

South London borough's a racial powder keg on verge of explosion

Following is the first of two articles on Britain's growing racial problems.

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — "Sooner or later, our violence is going to explode. We're like a time bomb ...."

Greg is a black teen-ager in Lewisham, a rundown south London borough that has the sixth largest nonwhite community in the British capital.

He reflects the attitude of many young nonwhites who are becoming increasingly militant over what they see as a raw deal by British society.

"It won't be so long before 'The Monkey' has a little Belfast on his hands in the streets of Lewisham," Greg said. "And then look out, Babylon."

In ghetto slang, "The Monkey" means the white man. It's the ultimate in ghetto insults. "Babylon" is the white establishment and culture.

Early in August Lewisham witnessed some of the worst street violence in Britain since riots sparked by Fascist marches in London's East End in 1936.

More than 2,000 members of the ultra-rightist National Front marched through the borough protesting what they claimed were muggings and street crime by blacks and clashed with several thousand young black militants and white revolutionaries; members of the Trotskyite Socialist Workers party, heavily loaded with other leftist militants.

The blacks and leftwingers also fought with more than 4,000 police officers guarding the march. The street battle, in which more than 200 persons were injured and more than 100 arrested, was more a clash between political extremists of left and right than a racial showdown.

But the racial overtones heightened growing fears of trouble between young nonwhite militants and white Britons that has been simmering for years.

Cries of "Up the National Front! Kill the blacks!" echoed around Lewisham's streets during the fighting there. The Front, formed 10 years ago, is campaigning for a halt to nonwhite immigration and repatriation of the 2 million nonwhite West Indians, Asians and Africans now living in Britain. The population of Britain is 56 million.

Community workers, nonwhite leaders and police officers say tension is high in the nonwhite areas, particularly the tight-knit West Indian communities that have mushroomed in British cities since the main wave of immigration began nearly 30 years ago.

Scattered violence last year, climaxed by a six-hour battle between police and young blacks at a Caribbean carnival in London's Notting Hill quarter, raised the temperature.

Antiwhite anger erupted again at this year's carnival on the last weekend in August. Police battled mobs of young blacks rampaging through the streets mugging spectators, looting stores and chasing away white newsmen and television crews.

Police reported more than 220 persons, nearly all of them young West Indians, were arrested and more than 200 persons were injured.

Dismayed black community leaders said the trouble was "a serious indictment of the West Indian community," but blamed high unemployment and black frustration for the violence.

The trouble was on a smaller scale than the riots that ripped the Mardi Gras-style carnival apart in 1976. But it underlined the smouldering tension and heated up the racial situation.

Tension has been stoked this year by what community leaders claimed was a systematic campaign of violence in several cities by white extremists against nonwhites and their organizations.

The attacks have taken place against a surge of political and propaganda activity by the National Front that has alarmed authorities.

The Front's successful showing in recent municipal elections has raised fears among liberals, the Establishment and nonwhites alike that the party is gaining support among hardup Britons looking for a scapegoat for the economic and social problems that have beset them since 1974.

Hostility among nonwhites, particularly among West Indians, has been mounting for years over what they claim is discrimination in jobs, housing, education and social services. This has been intensified by Britain's economic crisis, the gravest since World War II.

Overall unemployment in Britain is put at some 1.63 million or 6.9 per cent of the work force. Government officials estimate, however, that the jobless rate among the nonwhite work force of some 500,000 is approximately 12 per cent.

The main wave of nonwhite immigration began after World War II. Thousands of Indians, Pakistanis, Africans and West Indians from Britain's colonies flooded into the mother country looking for the promised land. Instead, they found themselves with menial jobs, such as sweeping streets, and the poorest housing.

In most recent years, tens of thousands of Asians have come to Britain from Africa fleeing repression there by black regimes. The most notable exodus was 28,000 Asians expelled from Uganda by President Idi Amin in 1974. Since most held British passports they were allowed to settle here despite outcry by rightists.

As citizens of the Empire, later the Commonwealth, the immigrants from Africa, Asia, the Caribbean and elsewhere, were allowed unrestricted entry. However, as their numbers swelled and ghettoes developed, successive British governments imposed an increasing number of restrictions.

Under the present quota system, 5,000 heads of families are granted entry every year. However, government officials note, that means as many as 35,000 persons actually are allowed in Britain annually.

Rightwingers, and an increasing number of members of the governing Labor Party, fearful of the strain that a flood of immigrants could imposed on Britain's creaky economy, are demanding further cutbacks.

Next: Racial posters in the subway.

PASTEBOARD PARADISE

Joseph Platt, president of Claremont University Center, and Mrs. Georgia McManigal inspect the new ticket machine in Bridges Auditorium, one of the improvements in a $1.5 million restoration of the building. The machine is capable of storing and retrieving 2,500 tickets for 36 shows. Mrs. McManigal and her husband, Craig, were chairmen of the Pomona Valley Campaign for Bridges. The auditorium will reopen Oct. 22 after being closed two years.

Bridges Auditorium will reopen Oct. 22

"It's the beginning of a new phase in our history," said Joseph Platt, president of the Claremont-University Center, at a press luncheon for some 30 people in the second-floor foyer of the Mable Shaw Bridges Auditorium Wednesday.

"It" is the reopening of the 2,500-seat auditorium after two years of refurbishing and remodeling. The project included installing fire sprinklers and new sound, lighting and stage equipment, reupholstering the seats and painting inside and out.

"For 44 years Big Bridges has been the center of performing arts at the colleges and in the community," Platt said. "We couldn't be more pleased to have it back. We have an exciting program coming up, and we hope to continue to serve the community in cultural affairs."

Platt said the building cost more to refurbish than it did to build originally. He thanked the staff members for their hard work and the volunteers who helped raise the $1.5 million necessary to restore the building.

The job was financed by 534 donors who responded to a fund-raising campaign with gifts ranging from $1 to $750,000. The renovation work began last September when it was apparent that the goal would be met.

Restored and newly equipped, the auditorium will reopen the night of Oct. 22. Zubin Mehta will conduct the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra with Shirley Verrett as soprano soloist in the reopening concert.

The hall was the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Appleton Shaw Bridges as a memorial to their daughter, who died in 1907 while she was a student at Pomona College. When it opened in 1931, it could seat the entire population of Claremont. It attracted major entertainers and public figures from the beginning. Among those appearing in the auditorium's early years were Lily Pons, Admiral Byrd, Marian Anderson, Fritz Kreisler, Amelia Earhart, Kirsten Flagstad, Sinclair Lewis and Eve Curie, and the high level continued through the years. The Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra performed there 85 times.

With the big hall back in business, about half of the campus events stagged by the colleges' Center for the Performing Arts will be there this academic year.

California granted custody of meteorite

California has been granted custody of the Old Woman meteorite, a rusty, three-ton iron rock from outer space.

This announcement from U.S. Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus today prompted expressions of great joy from San Bernardino County officials.

"We're just delighted," said Dr. Gerald Smith, director of the San Bernardino County Museum, where the Old Woman currently is housed. "It's great news."

Dr. Smith thanked the Board of Supervisors and California legislators in Washington, D.C., for their efforts "to keep this, the second largest meteorite ever found in the United States, here in Southern California."

Supervisor Robert O. Townsend was elated. "This is indeed good news and demonstrates the strength that people back home have when they make their wishes known.

"I am particularly pleased at the cooperation we received from our congressional delegation and the efforts they expended to keep the Old Woman meteorite here where it rightfully belongs."

Supervisor James Mayfield, in whose First District the meteorite was found in 1975 near Twentynine Palms, said "The Board of Supervisors is grateful to our congressional delegation, particularly Rep. Shirley Pettis and Sen. Alan Cranston, for their extra efforts in contacting the appropriate Washington agencies in this important matter."

Mayfield also commended Dr. Smith for his work with UCLA and the Los Angeles Museum of Natural History in gaining support in the move to keep the Old Woman in California.

"But," said Mayfield, "the real heroes in this effort have been those interested citizens who have taken the time and trouble to contact their Washington representatives and express their pride and interest in this unique artifact which is a part of our area."

Third District Supervisor Dennis Hansberger, in whose district the county museum is located, "strongly approved" the action by the U.S. Interior Department.

"I hope now that we have come this far we will be able to complete the necessary arrangements to make certain the Old Woman meteorite will be assigned to our own county museum and made available on loan to major museums throughout the Western United States."

The three-by-four-foot meteorite was found by two hopeful miners, David Friberg and Mike Jendruczak of Twentynine Palms, and immediately claimed by the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C.

It was named Old Woman meteorite because it had landed on federal land in the Old Woman Mountains.

Friberg and Jendruczak had been searching for a legendary Spanish Conquistador gold mine. They filed a claim on the meteorite under the 1872 Mining Act and hope to get a $5,000 finder's fee for the rock, which they say is worth $1 million.

The Smithsonian claimed the rock belonged to all the people because it landed on federal property.

The battle ended Wednesday when Andrus, citing the "strong bid" made by the California congressional delegation, decided to let California keep its meteorite.

Transit study of handicapped, elderly sought

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

The San Bernardino Associated Governments (SANBAG) board directed its staff Wednesday to establish perimeters and objectives for formal studies examining transit needs for the elderly and handicapped within San Bernardino County.

The planning staff will report back to the board at its regular meeting Oct. 5 with requests for proposals to begin the studies and launch an extensive push to reach the disabled and older citizens currently immobile because of transit isolation.

The action came with a report from Dan Berry, associate executive director of SANBAG, who explained the need to establish some formal groundwork on meeting the needs of the transit dependents. He reported on the formation of the Developmental Disabilities Area Planning Board, a state mandated planning board established to "watchdog" the interests of the elderly and handicapped and with a direct line of communication to the State Department of Health.

Berry said members of the board felt that local transit dollars were being used more for streets and roads than meeting the needs of seniors and disabled.

The attempt to provide services to these isolated persons now, said Berry, "appears to be a movement that is picking up momentum and an area that we need to address. We must sit down and work out mutually agreeable criteria and work in a positive manner rather than winding up in a court battle."

Councilwoman Eileen Carter of Chino pointed out the pressing need to define "unmet transit needs." She asked, "Are we not meeting needs if we miss one desert or mountain road? Does this mean we must knuckle under or cooperate? There is a difference between working together and being told do what we want or we'll sue."

During the July meeting of SANBAG, a public hearing conducted by the Southern California Association of Governments (SCAG) first pointed out the need to deal with public transit for the elderly and handicapped. Since then, SANBAG officials have been working with local agencies to draft recommendations on correcting the problem. In the West End, Gene Stallians of Paul's Yellow Cab paid for a study by Clyde Sweet and Consultants to identify the number and needs of the elderly and handicapped. The West Valley Transit Service Authority will consider expansion of dial-a-ride service Sept. 15 to deal with those needs.

Mayor Bob Holcomb of San Bernardino said, "I think it's long overdue to take on a formalized study on what is unmet need for the elderly and handicapped. There's no question in my mind that some can't get to a bus. There's no question in my mind that they need transportation . . . Public hearings are great, but there are many who can't get to the hearings."

Wes Fisher of SCAG commented, "I don't think anyone has adequately described or defined what an unmet need is. I think many of the comments here are correct. We haven't defined unmet need very well and do not have a legal description of it."

The board accepted a motion by Holcomb to divide the formal studies into three areas, dealing separately with the West End, East Valley and San Bernardino metropolitan area, and the mountains and desert.

Solar energy hearing slated

A public hearing to consider a solar energy code for Los Angeles County will be conducted Monday at 9:30 a.m. by the Board of Supervisors in the board hearing room in Los Angeles.

Supervisor James Hayes, who pushed for early preparation of the code, said he has received inquiries on what is being proposed from other states, major cities and counties across the country.

Hayes said he ordered the code drafted because of complaints of shoddy work being performed by some contractors.

"With interests now at a high mark on solar energy installations, the blue suede shoe types are trying to move into this field to make a quick killing.

"This code will set up the standards for all phases of solar energy installations so the public is protected and the legitimate contractors can serve the public," Hayes said.

After the hearing on Monday, Hayes said he expects the code to receive final passage by the Board of Supervisors before the end of the year.

Fireworks law could lessen area problems

By BOB SWETNAM
PB Staff Writer

A state law which bans the sale or transfer of "safe and sane" fireworks to children under 16 years old will probably lessen problems caused to law enforcement and fire departments in areas where they are sold, local officials indicated today.

Assembly Bill 382, introduced by Assemblyman Louis Papan, D-Daly City, will regulate the sale or transfer of such fireworks in areas where the sales are allowed.

The bill, requested by the state fire marshal's office, was recently signed into law by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

"I don't believe 'safe and sane' fireworks are really that safe," said La Verne Fire Chief Robert Lapp. "This law is a step in the right direction."

La Verne is one of the two valley cities which allows "safe and sane" fireworks during Fourth of July celebrations. The other city is Chino.

"I haven't had a chance to review the new law, but it sounds similar to one of the options we have been looking at," said Chino Police Chief Gerald Doyle.

Doyle said the Chino City Council had previously asked the police and fire departments to look into the city's policy of allowing the sale of "safe and sane" fireworks during the Fourth of July to determine if it should be changed.

The options that Doyle and Chino Fire Chief O.M. Short presented to the City Council in August included: a banning completely of the sale of "safe and sane" fireworks from the city; stopping the sale of fireworks to children under 16 years old; and allowing the present policy regulating the sale of fireworks to stand.

Doyle and Short said nearly 200 grass fires and several hundred noise disturbance calls this summer were attributed to fireworks.

Both believe illegal fireworks, such as firecrackers and cherry bombs are the biggest problem, but add that even "safe and sane" fireworks can cause problems.

Lapp agrees. "A lot of the safe and sane fireworks are misused. If they were used the way they are supposed to be, they wouldn't be as hazardous," he said.

Cooler weather expected

The National Weather Service forecaster today offered some welcome news about the current scorcher.

Help is on the way in the form of a cooling trend, but the forecaster wouldn't say when the cooler weather would arrive.

The current hot spell has been attributed to a thermal low pressure system that is causing the flow of warm, relatively moist air from the southwest.

Those who think it's been hot should take some consolation in the fact that 22 years ago from Aug. 31 through Sept. 7 the temperature for eight straight days peaked at over 100 degrees.

The hottest day ever in local weather records was set Sept. 6, 1955, near the end of that scorcher, when the mercury reached 110 degrees.

The maximum for an Aug. 31 was recorded in 1955 at 102.3. The following day, Sept. 1, the temperature topped off at 107.7. On successive days, the highs were 108.2, 107.3, 105.7, 107.3, 110, and 104.3.

Those seeking relief in the mountains should be advised that the temperature will be in the mid-80s.

At the beaches, the weatherman says it will be in the mid-70s today and Friday, with patchy, low clouds burning away quickly.

Here locally, the weatherman is predicting 100 degree temperatures today and Friday.

Portions of Wheeler Avenue, where it intersects with Bonita Avenue and Paseo Avenue in La Verne, Tuesday were declared a part of the county highway system to allow the county to install traffic control signals at the two intersections.

Chaffey tax rate drops 8 more cents

Things are looking a bit better for taxpayers in the Chaffey Joint Union High School District.

Assistant Supt. Russell Dickinson announced this week that the tax rate for 1977-78 will drop an additional eight cents, compared to earlier estimates.

The final tax rate set by the county Board of Supervisors will be $2.11 per $100 of assessed valuation, a 36-cent decrease compared to 1976-77.

Most homeowners will still be paying higher tax bills, however, because of reassessments. The district's assessed valuation jumped 25.1 per cent over last year.

Dickinson explained that because of the increased assessed valuation, the tax rate automatically goes down. The rate is figured according to state formulas.

And the valuation on utilities in the district went up 11.9 per cent over last year, compared to the district's earlier estimate of 4.6 per cent. The figure for utilities was not available until recently, Dickinson noted.

The boost for utilities is the main reason the tax rate will drop another eight cents compared to the earlier figure, he said.

Utilities rose from $58.6 million to $65.5 million for 1977-78, Dickinson told the school board.

He said that because of those figures not being available when the final $27.9 million budget was approved in early August, the correct tax rate was not given.

Pickup truck thefts

Owners of pickup trucks are urged to keep these vehicles locked and — if possible — to install anti-theft devices to help stem a rising increase in truck thefts.

The highest theft increase involves a sector of San Bernardino County, which includes Cucamonga, Etiwanda and Alta Loma, said California Highway Patrol officials.

They report the most popular theft targets are 1965 and earlier models of Chevrolet and Ford trucks.

Officials reported an 88.7 per cent recovery rate. But that rate includes vehicles that were wrecked or stripped of their parts.

Child abuse line termed a success

By PHYLLIS CANNON
Asst. City Editor

The 24-hour, toll-free child abuse line set up in Los Angeles a month ago has been termed "a tremendous success" in uncovering cases of child abuse.

Los Angeles County Supervisor James Hayes said that since the line went into operation, 548 calls have been received by the county's social services department. And 308 of the calls resulted in abused children being placed under protective care, he added.

"Of the 308 cases, 38 required immediate action by police agencies and in at least one case the caller gave information that saved the life of a severely abused 2-month-old infant," said Hayes.

Calls received are processed by trained children's service workers on a seven-day-a-week basis. These social workers, said Hayes, know when the facts of a call require immediate police action.

Callers remain anonymous if they wish and are protected by law from civil or criminal prosecution when they report cases of child abuse.

Hayes cited one case where a baby was saved from permanent disability or death by a caller identified as a "friend of a friend."

Another caller was the actual victim — a teen-age girl who had attempted suicide. A social worker intervened, and the girl and her parents are undergoing treatment, said Hayes.

The supervisor said if the first month's statistics are any indication, the $12,500 annual cost for the reporting line is a bargain. The cost for each call is about 50 cents.

Hayes said the social services department cared for almost 45,000 abused children last year, but added that "could very well be the proverbial tip of the iceberg.

"My experts in the field say that as many as 250,000 children could be victims of abuse each year."

The toll-free telephone number is ZE 2-1234 and may be reached by dialing "O" for the operator.

2 firemen hurt in $75,000 fire

Two county firemen were injured in a $75,000 house fire in Glendora.

Fire Specialist Don Donnelly suffered injuries to his right knee which did not require hospitalization. Fireman John Watkins was hospitalized for three hours with a back injury.

The fire at the home of J.V. Rohrbacker, 2004 Redwood Drive, Glendora, appears to have started in the garage, according to the Los Angeles County Fire Department.

Also damaged in the fire was a motorhome, a customized Jeep, ceilings in the house, a motorcycle, welding equipment and carpeting.

The energy evangelist

James R. Schlesinger, our first energy secretary, went to Denver on his first big outing and spoke to the National Convention of the American Legion.

By the time he spoke, the graying, conservative Legionnaires had passed five resolutions generally supporting President Carter's energy program.

So his task was not to rally their support. It was to sell a message few wanted to hear: We have a crisis without a shortage, a profound national challenge without a Pearl Harbor to mark it off.

The energy crisis is like some Biblical tragedy. Everyone knows that disaster lurks just outside the city walls but they do not want to hear the words of the prophets for they are caught up in the pleasures of the moment, swept by the music they want to hear.

And thus, the hardest job in American government today has fallen on the shoulders of James Schlesinger. He must change our habits of living.

The love of physical gratification, materialism, effortless living — these are not new to America or to democracies. Alexis de Tocqueville wrote about them more than 130 years ago in "Democracy in America."

In this classic book he wrote of "the special taste that men of democratic times entertain for physical enjoyments" and listed their wants: " . . . to add a few yards of land to your field, to plant an orchard, to enlarge a dwelling, to be always making life more comfortable and convenient, to avoid trouble, and to satisfy the smallest wants without effort and almost without cost. These are small objects, but the soul clings to them."

Our careless use of energy has served the ends Tocqueville described. Schlesinger's job is to ease us into substitutes in a world running short of gas and oil.

Perhaps he is the right man for this evangelism. He is a stern-looking, religious, very private man — old for his mere 48 years, often blunt, deeply serious. Some think him the ultimate symbol of status quo in Washington. But he is not that at all.

Schlesinger instead is perhaps the best of the bureaucratic world. He moves with skill, force and detailed knowledge within the framework for action given him by the politicians in charge.

Listen to his tense, short, commanding sentences in his speech to the Legion convention in Denver:

"Legionnaires:

"Today our nation faces a troublesome passage — requiring dramatic changes in our sources of energy. It is a passage both difficult and potentially perilous. Nonetheless, it is one through which — with foresight and with dedication — we can triumphantly come. The President of the United States has sounded a clarion call — of warning and challenge. To that summons Legionnaires along with other Americans will respond . . .

"The President has called for sacrifice, but the sacrifice for which he calls is less of a material nature than of a change in attitudes and assumptions — of all sacrifices the hardest for men to make. We shall have to give up our careless, spendthrift ways in energy use."

Horace Knowles, a veteran of Washington's ghost army of speechwriters, once said a speech should be an act of leadership. That seems to have been what Schlesinger had in mind.

It will take the best he has to offer. It's the hardest battle in government.

Cash instead of stamps

Tucked in the new farm bill is a little-noticed provision that could pave the way for President Carter's plan to eliminate food stamps and replace them with cash payments to poor people.

The bill — likely to be approved by Congress in September — would authorize the secretary of agriculture to send checks to some food stamp recipients instead of requiring them to buy stamps and redeem them at groceries.

It's a sound idea and it could save the taxpayers money by cutting out the middleman and reducing administrative red tape.

A logical site for the experiment would be Birmingham, Ala., where a civic group known as Operation New Birmingham has been campaigning for years to discard food stamps and try a direct payment system.

Thoughts

Brethren, I do not consider that I have made it my own; but one thing I do, forgetting what lies behind and straining forward to what lies ahead, I press on toward the goal for the prize of the upward call of God in Christ Jesus. — Philippians 3:13, 14.

I find the great thing in this world is not so much where we stand as in what direction we are moving. — Oliver Wendell Holmes, American poet and essayist.

Challenges APT survey

Dear Editor:

As a product of and presently a parent of children in the Pomona Unified School District, it was with great interest that I read the survey results that the Associated Pomona Teachers conducted. What criteria was developed and used to assess and determine the validity of the administrative positions APT recommended should be eliminated? This body should be aware that many of these positions are mandated as a criteria for accepting federal funding. Does APT propose that the district can function without these funds? Or have they developed an alternative source of funding that would allow the district to operate fairly and efficiently without federal funding? My next question is: Since our property taxes pay the salaries of this group, what percentage of faculty reside and pay taxes in our district?

As we criticize existing programs, we must ask ourselves what events lead to the development of these programs. One needs to evaluate national data relating to low averages of California students in reading and math areas. Why not strive towards improving the quality and delivery of educational services to all people on an equal basis.

There are persons in our society who have special needs in the areas of language, physical and mental disabilities. In the past, these needs were not being addressed adequately and the federal government through legislation passed laws which provided for development and implementation of programs to meet these needs.

True, some of the positions are not delivering direct educational services to the students and teachers. If eliminated, it could seriously hamper educational services to the students that the law intended should be serviced.

FAS uses phony figures

WASHINGTON — The Foreign Agriculture Service (FAS), an arm of the Agriculture Dept., sends both government men and businessmen abroad to promote the sale of U.S. farm products.

In all fairness, it must be said that these traveling pitchmen have been successful in boosting foreign sales of ripe tobacco leaf, surplus wheat and other commodities grown in the United States.

They haven't been quite as successful, however, as the FAS likes to claim. Last year, the agency inflated its claims with phony statistics — the better to justify its $40 million budget.

There was the matter, for example, of cattle exports to Hungary. A staff investigation for Chairman Charles Vanik, D.-Ohio, of the House Trade subcommittee, found that Hungary is buying less cattle from the United States.

But the FAS solemnly assured Congress Hungary is purchasing more U.S. cattle than ever. For this, the agency took full credit. .

It turned out, however, that the FAS had various statistics to choose from. The Economic Research Service, which keeps track of livestock exports, reported that 597 American steers reached Hungary in 1976.

The Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service keeps its own count of the cattle that is shipped overseas. By its arithmetic, 1,245 head of cattle made it to Hungary.

Neither figure was much to boast about. The FAS, therefore, seized upon some private statistics kept by the Holstein-Friesian Assn., a huge cattle cooperative. Triumphantly, the FAS reported to Congress that the cooperative had exported 6,300 cattle to the Hungarian market. But the agency couldn't even get the private figures right. The surprised cooperative had reported shipping only 3,326 steers to Hungary.

If Congress has been misled about the amount of U.S. beef served to hungry Hungarians last year, the FAS is not repentent. An official told us the agency intended to "ignore" the congressional investigation. He said the FAS was constantly being investigated by Congress, without detriment. It is difficult, he added, to make sure all the figures are accurate.

But congressional critics are wondering why the taxpayers need to spend $40 million to promote agricultural sales overseas. The United States dominates agricultural trade and shouldn't need touring promoters to tout its beef and barley.

"It's a little bit," Vanik told us, "like Saudi Arabia advertising the benefits of its oil."

NUCLEAR CRISIS: At least 20 nuclear reactors are so swamped with their own radioactive wastes that they will have to close down within seven years unless drastic action is taken.

The Carter administration has prohibited reprocessing used nuclear fuel and many nuclear plants have crammed their storage facilities to capacity with the spent fuel rods. A nuclear reactor must shut down if its lethal wastes cannot be stored or shipped away.

The nation's nuclear plants, meanwhile, are running out of room and time. An investigation by the Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) has found several nuclear reactors with a critical oversupply of spent fuel.

For example, South Carolina's H.B. Robinson plant, operated by Carolina Power and Light, will be forced to shut down by February 1978 if it is not permitted to ship out its deadly radioactive wastes. A company spokesman admitted to us: "We're in trouble. Time is of the essence."

Another reactor on the problem list is located in La Crosse, Wis. The chaotic federal nuclear policy, complained the plant manager, is "constipating the nuclear industry." Several other nuclear facilities are also caught in the squeeze.

The nuclear industry, meanwhile, is grinding to a standstill while it waits for President Carter to produce a comprehensive nuclear policy. In a private letter to the president, Rep. John Moss, D.-Calif., has warned that "the earliest an industry spent fuel storage facility could be built and licensed is 1983. Yet by 1983, 30 reactors will have lost" the ability to control their nuclear wastes properly.

This, stressed Moss, will result in the "imminent threat of nuclear reactor shutdowns."

In fairness, government experts claim the situation has improved from a dire emergency of a couple of years ago. But radioactive wastes continue to stockpile while storage space shrinks and nuclear planners scramble frantically to avert shutdowns.

Rude guests in our house

When the United States elected to host the United Nations it was assumed that these foreign "guests" would always be on their best behavior.

In the years since, however, the world's backward nations have come to dominate the General Assembly — and many brought with them their backward ways.

Last year three cars registered to Idi Amin's Ugandan Mission in the United States collected 1,761 traffic tickets in eleven months — and ignored them.

A foreign diplomat can come and go — into and out of our country — carrying cash, drugs or state secrets in his luggage — and there is not a thing we can do about it.

A foreign diplomat living in the United States can ignore his bills, let his dog bite the neighbors. He can injure and even kill people with his automobile — and there's not a thing we can do about it.

And not only are diplomats beyond the reach of our laws but their wives and children are also — and even the housemaids in their embassies!

No other nation in the world treats international emissaries as leniently as do we.

Indeed, hard pressed as New York City is to pay its bills, the city still must spend more than two million dollars a year to protect these visitors — while they ignore some two hundred thousand traffic tickets each year.

A generation ago it was the "Ugly American" who sometimes made himself unpopular and unwelcome overseas. But nowhere did we expect to flaunt the laws of a host nation.

Newsweek magazine remembers when a cultural attache at the Panamanian Embassy ran a red light in 1974 — crashed into the car of a Dr. Halla Brown — a 62-year-old clinical professor of medicine at George Washington University.

The impact damaged Dr. Brown's spine, turned her into a permanent quadraplegic. Her medical bills have totalled a quarter million dollars and so far she still requires round-the-clock nursing.

Panama's Ambassador offered his condolences; nothing else.

Diplomatic immunity was intended to protect diplomats from intimidation by the host government. This is important.

In "undemocratic" countries our own diplomats might be subjected to harassment under local laws or kangaroo courts.

But this experience of Dr. Brown . . .

And the death of a young boy last year who was run over by the chauffeur of the Senegalese Embassy . . .

These incidents have finally motivated our Congress to modify the Act of 1790. If that bill passes the Senate this Fall our guests are going to be taught some manners.

Top diplomats will retain criminal and civil immunity — but not lesser embassy employees and not their servants. And the bill will require every member of the diplomatic community to carry liability insurance.

This will not clip their wings but, as United States protocol chief Erin Dobelle says, "It will require that they answer for what they do."

Doc Peirsol

Just in jest

Because three children have been killed and 161 injured in accidents related to ice cream trucks in the Los Angeles area over the past three years, our state Assembly has decided that ice cream trucks in Los Angeles must be equipped with front and rear amber warning lights which must be flashing every time the trucks stop to sell their wares. — And there we have another perfect example of how we Americans are forever attempting to cure evils instead of eradicating them. How much simpler it would be just to abolish ice cream trucks and thereby save at least three lives and also make certain there wouldn't be 161 injuries during the next three years.

Revising the bid system

By EARL G. WATERS

At what dollar point should public construction projects be farmed out to private contractors? Historically, laws calling for all public works projects to be contracted have been weakened, little by little, to permit governmental entities to perform limited amounts of building through the use of public employes.

As time marched on, with laws being changed to satisfy the whims of the cities, counties, school and special districts and state agencies, including the colleges and university, there has developed a hodgepodge of regulations, each different from the other but all dealing with the same basic, that of public construction.

Once winning the point that some work projects could be done without going to private contract, each session has witnessed numerous measures seeking to increase the dollar limitations for such work. Furthermore, a growing practice has developed whereby many agencies have split construction jobs into several parts with the obvious intent of evading the dollar limitations upon building which can be done without bids for private contractors.

The ever expanding amounts of work being performed by public agencies to the exclusion of the private contractors has brought about a demand for reform and uniformity in the law. These initially came from the contractors but they have now been joined by both labor and industry.

In an attempt to restore order out of the chaos which has developed, Assemblyman Bill McVittie authored AB 1931 which sought to rewrite the bidding requirements for public construction for all public agencies. The measure gathered some support but also encountered snags in the form of disagreements as to specifics and opposition in general. To resolve these and salvage the reform measure, McVittie has agreed to delay passage for the purpose of further hearings to work out objections.

As it stands, although the bill purports uniformity, it still has provided different ceilings depending upon whether it is a city or some other level of government. Generally, the public agencies don't oppose a reasonable ceiling on the work which can be done without bid so there seems no good reason for the varying amounts even though proponents say the differences are due to "political realities."

Supporters of the measure argue that private contractors can do the work for less money, contending there is great waste in both manpower and materials when public agencies are permitted to do their own work.

But the public agencies, opposing limits which they consider too strict, say that the cost of preparing plans and specifications and the advertising, all necessary for bidding, is too great to be justified on small jobs. Furthermore, they contend that without the ability to do a reasonable amount of their own work, the cost to the public for necessary maintenance and emergency crews would be excessive.

Under the bill, in its present form, cities are limited to a $10,000 cost for new building without bids while counties may undertake up to $15,000. School and special districts may only construct up to $5,000 while state agencies, excepting the colleges and the universities, which are limited to $10,000, may go up to $15,000 on self-work projects.

Regardless of whether McVittie achieves true uniformity, one thing is certain if the bill passes. It will be more difficult to split construction jobs for the purpose of evading going to bid, for the new law would establish misdemeanor provisions for avoidance of the law.

Dear Searching: Even the experts are sharply divided on whether or not homosexuality is an illness that warrants a psychiatric diagnosis or if it's an alternate lifestyle. They all seem to agree, however, that homosexuality is NOT inherited.

I am with those who believe homosexuality is a psychological disorder caused by one of a number of problems. It could be an excessive attachment to a "smothering" mother or a tyrannical, weak or absent father. To make matters more complicated, some individuals with these very backgrounds may develop into normal heterosexual adults. Finally, glandular factors cannot be entirely ruled out in some cases.

If you cannot accept your son's homosexuality, so be it, but I would ask you, please, don't reject him. Homosexuals do not "choose the lifestyle." It's far more complicated than that.

UNCLE TOM'S

Q. "How many restaurants are there in this country called 'Uncle Tom's Cabin'?"

A. Now there you have me. Do know there's a restaurant in West Berlin called Onkel Tom's Hutte. What's remarkable about that place is it has survived two world wars wherein Germany and the United States fought mightily.

Q. "Who were the Casquette Girls?"

A. A batch of French girls sent to Mississippi about 1721 to be wives of the colonists. The French government gave each of them a little money and a trunk full of clothes.

Q. "I keep seeing references to the 'fms' what's an 'FM' anyway?"

A. The formerly married. They include the separated as well as the divorced. And they number 11 million in the U.S. now.

Q. "How much does a Rolls-Royce cost?"

A. The Silver Shadow, $38,700. The Camargue, $90,000. And in between. Would-be buyers have to sign up and wait two years.

INDENTURED

Certain written contracts generations ago used to be torn raggedly in half with each party to the agreement keeping a half. If necessary later, the ragged edges of the halves could be fitted together to prove the validity of the whole. Such contrcts, being indented, were call indentures. They were the kind of agreements used by New World employers to bring over Old World servants, laborers and craftsmen. These worked a given length of time to pay off their passage. They were referred to as "indentured" because of those torn contracts.

Large enough for honeymoon

DEAR DR. MILLER: My white rat, Glendora, is about to get a mate, and I'm building them a honeymoon cottage. Building costs being what they are these days, I don't want to go overboard with it, but I do want it large enough for them to enjoy. How big would that be? — S.A.

DEAR S.A.: A mini-mimimum of floor space for a compatible couple would be 170 inches, or a cage approximately 12 by 14 inches. Ten inches high is comfortable and allows adequate head room. Even in this space Glendora and her mate, could, eventually, get cabin fever, so an adjacent exercise year would undoubtedly be appreciated. Presuming the couple are compatible, you might want to consider adding a nursery in the near future. The bare minimum is nearly as large — 10 by 14 inches.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Our cat's becoming an exceptionally good bird hunter, and I'm a bit worried that if she eats the birds that don't get away from her, they could make her sick. My husband doesn't think they would, but I'd appreciate your opinion. — T.C.

DEAR T.C.: In my opinion, you should keep your cat in so she can't get any birds, and that would eliminate the real risk of her getting sick from eating them. Wild bird consumption could cause your cat severe illness or death from intestinal blockage or perforation (by bones) and/or she could pick up parasites of varying types. If you must allow your cat out, do so during the day only. Keeping her in from late afternoon to late morining would markedly reduce her hunting success, and thereby the hazard.

P.S.: The birds, and some of your neighbors who might be bird-lovers, would appreciate it, too.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Could swimming in an old dried-up lake give a dog bad ears? They were all right before he pulled this dumb trick. — D.B.

DEAR D.B.: If the lake was really dried-up, it would be quite a trick to swim in it in the first place. If, however, some water remained, particularly if polluted, swimming in it could indeed cause an otitis (ear infection). Swimming in any body of water can cause ear problems. Often an unapparent problem is present in the ears, and the stress related to the swimming episode combines with the water in the ears will cause the condition to flare into an obvious problem. Early veterinary attention to any ear problem is indicated.

Three cheers for white anklets

Mothers of America! You have been given one more chance to be fashion pacesetters.

White anklets are back! They've been seen throughout Europe being worn with high-heeled shoes. I know it is only a matter of time before Princess Grace, Queen Elizabeth, Jackie Onassis and Barbara Walters are schlepping around in them.

Before you shake your head and say, "No, it'll never work," let me assure you I went through the same humiliation route with white anklets that you went through back in the '40s and '50s. I too was maligned by my family.

My sons self-destructed before my very eyes once when I appeared in white anklets on the playground. My husband said they made my legs look like tree stumps, and one day when a friend of my daughter's came to the house to play she said, "What team does your mother play for?"

We let them shame us into giving up our white socks. And what did we get in return? Pantyhose. You have to be in shape to wear pantyhose. Just ask Joe Namath. I personally never put on a pair of pantyhose without thinking I got a pair that was hatched prematurely and needed another few months in the egg.

Ah, the good old days of white anklets. They never sprung a run . . . never slid down over your hips when you coughed . . . never cut off circulation when you crossed your legs. White socks went with everything, winter and summer. And you never had cracked heels.

Remember the warm, fuzzy feeling you had in white socks? Critics are the first to point out how ridiculous they looked. Sour grapes. Have you ever seen yourself standing in front of the mirror in a pair of knee-highs and a pair of glasses?

The trouble with Mothers is they are never the pacesetters of anything. They borrow a few T-shirts and jeans from their sons, klutzy shoes and funky blouses from their daughters, sweaters from their husbands and a few dresses from their mothers. But they do not have one style that is exclusive, unique, and theirs alone.

The white socks could do it for us. It could establish mothers as trendsetters. What have you got to lose — except your ankles.

Have you got the guts?

More a communication problem

DEAR DR. LAMB — What has happened to a man who in the nine years I have been his wife has been sexually vigorous and is suddenly impotent? His age may be important, but from what I have read, it is not necessarily so. He is 63. We are happily retired, but he keeps physically active as I do. He weighs no more than he did at 20, a trim 135 pounds on a 5 feet 7 frame. He does smoke — one to two packs a day. He does not drink.

I am trying to avoid accepting the possibility that I have done or said something to "turn him off," and I don't know whether to open the subject for discussion which might hurt him.

When we were discussing his proclivity for catching colds and the fact that I rarely got one, he rather testily pointed out to me, "don't forget, I'm 10 years older than you." As a matter of fact I am only eight years his junior. I may be overly sensitive, but I think his remark about the colds had a double meaning.

Can you suggest anything to help him or to help me adjust to a lack of something very precious to me?

DEAR READER — The most obvious fact is that the two of you have a communication problem. A husband and wife should be able to talk freely to each other about the important things in their personal life, particularly where it involves or affects both. If you were able to communicate effectively your husband might not have much difficulty either.

You should try to discuss your personal feelings with your husband and try to make him feel secure in your love. Avoid being demanding or accusing. If you are successful in making him feel that you love him, no matter what, and that you are his best friend who is interested in his happiness above all else, he may want to talk about it.

He may be afraid of failure because he is getting older. It may be as simple as convincing him that he need not be successful every time any more and that the closeness and love is the important thing to share.

He is still young enough to be sexually active. More than half of American men older than 75 are. It follows that many by that age are not and often this is because of associated disease, particularly disease of the arteries that affects all parts of the body in addition to causing heart attacks or strokes.

I am sending you the Health Letter number 3-12, Impotence, to give you a better idea of what affects men. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y., 10019.

Your personal relationship to each other is important. A couple having difficulties in their marriage is also likely to have difficulty in the bedroom. If ihis applies to you it might be a good idea to try to improve the personal relations in the marriage besides just sex. Loving attention outside the bedroom may result in receiving loving attention in the bedroom.

If your husband does have an impotence problem that doesn't correct itself, he should regard it as a symptom and have an examination. If you have other marriage problems you may profit from seeing a marriage counselor.

Dr. Lamb answers representative letters of general interest in his column. Write to him in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Astrographs

By Bernice Bede Osol
For Friday, Sept. 9, 1977
Your Birthday, Sept. 9, 1977

Don't give up on things in which you've invested your time, talent and money. These will pay off this coming year, not flash-in-the-pan-type activities.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Friendship could be jeopardized if you take it for granted. Under no conditions speak for a pal without his or her consent. Like to find out more of what lies ahead for you? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio Ciy Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Look toward the future optimistically, but also be realistic. Before you embark on any new projects, be sure you assess all the probabilities.

SORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Show only your best side to the public today. Any out-of-character actions could damage the image you want to project.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 21-Dec. 23) Save yourself some embarrassment today. Don't pretend to know something that you really don't. A challenge could make you look very foolish.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be careful who you assign to handle your business affairs today. Put the wrong person in the driver's seat and you'll end up with egg on your face.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Both you and your mate are more edgy than you realize today. Some inconsequential word or action could cause a spontaneous flare-up.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) "Safety First" is always a sound rule. This is particularly important to you if using new or unfamiliar equipment.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't spring any sudden changes that disrupt family routine today. You'll get everybody rattled with your disregard for their feelings.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You are not noted for making snap judgments, but you may do so to your own detriment today. Stick to your familiar pattern of moving cautiously.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Take no financial risks today. Don't buy anything that is more novel than utilitarian. Your yardstick should be predicated on a practical scale.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A misunderstanding could arise between you and a friend today over something silly. Quash it before a foolish barrier is erected.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your timing could be off today regarding when and how to close a deal. You can rectify this by being aware that "when" is just as important as "how."

Opening lead — 10♥

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

This hand from "Bridge is Beautiful" shows how responder handles a good hand with weak three-card support for partner's opening bid. He starts with a two-diamond response. Maybe the hand belongs in notrump or in a minor suit. Then when South rebids to two hearts, North stops exploration and goes on to the heart game.

West opens the 10 of trumps and South ducks the first trump lead to keep control of the suit. East leads a second trump and South takes his ace. Four hearts is a cinch. There is one spade loser plus two trump losers. Can you see how to avoid that spade loser?

South cashes his ace of diamonds, enters dummy with a club, discards a spade on the king of diamonds, ruffs a diamond, enters dummy with a second club, ruffs dummy's last diamond and is pleased to see that all the diamonds have been played.

South plays more clubs. East's best defense is not to ruff, but even that does him no good. South simply throws him in with his last high trump and he is forced to lead away from the king of spades.

Ask the Jacobys

An Oregon reader wants to know what we bid in response to partner's one-heart opening with:

♠xxxx ♥xx ♦xx ♣AKxxx?

We respond with one spade with one notrump as our second choice and pass as a third choice. We definitely do not respond two clubs and have no great confidence in whatever response we make.

Eskimos face whale of a problem

EDDIE HOPSON HAS HUNTED BOWHEADS SINCE HE WAS A BOY

WHALER CARL INEVILLE'S OUTLOOK IS GRIM

By ROBERT WELLER
Associated Press Writer

BARROW, Alaska (AP) — The Eskimos, who have survived 2,000 Arctic winters through subsistence hunting, could face tougher winters if a ban is upheld on killing the bowhead whale which now is on endangered lists.

"We may be on it ourselves soon," said one Eskimo.

The International Whaling Commission, meeting in June in Australia, unanimously approved a ban on killing — including subsistence hunting — of the bowhead, a slow-moving mammal whose head is almost a third of its length.

The state sharply limited the hunting of caribou, a large species of deer. The hunting of ducks and geese had been banned earlier.

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration will hold two days of hearings here beginning Thursday on whether the United States should challenge the whaling ban. The federal government has until Oct. 1 to oppose the ban.

The price of food here suggests that dietary substitutes to whales and caribou would be expensive. Milk is $3 a half gallon; eggs $2 a dozen.

One bowhead whale can supply 40 to 50 tons of food and raw materials, enough to sustain a small village from one hunting season to the next.

Mike Jeffries, an Alaska Legal Services lawyer for the Eskimos, says "the whale cannot be replaced with food stamps. They plan festivals around it; their whole lives center around the hunt."

Some local businessmen say the Eskimos don't pay any attention to caribou restrictions, which bar all but subsistence hunting, and aren't likely to observe a ban on whales either.

Eben Hopson, an Eskimo and mayor of Barrow, says: "We are used to overcoming the physical obstacles while hunting the whale. We are resourceful enough to overcome human obstacles. Our people will not go hungry."

The bowhead, which stay close to drifting ice and occasionally use their brow to break through the ice for a breath, was protected from commercial hunting in 1946. The U.S. Marine Mammal Protection Act of 1972 and the U.S. Endangered Species Act of 1973 stopped all but subsistence hunting.

Eskimo crews took a dozen or so whales a year until the early 1970s when the annual average rose to 29. In the 1976 season, crews reportedly killed 48 whales while wounding but losing another 35. This spring they took 28 more.

Official estimates of the number of bowheads range from 1,000 to 3,000 for the Pacific stock. An additional several hundred reportedly survive in Canada's eastern Arctic.

Eddie Hopson, 57, Eben's brother, has been hunting bowheads since he was a boy. He says government scientists base these estimates on how many whales they see during a hunt. "Most of the time they stay inside their sleeping bags," he says.

The Eskimos also challenge the government caribou census. The state says the caribou herd's size has dropped from 250,000 to 50,000 in the past five years.

Mayor Hopson says "there were in excess of 200,000 caribou in the Barrow area alone" during one week in August. "It is impossible to convince our people that there are no more caribou when we see them in such numbers all over the place — in the lakes and on the sand bars."

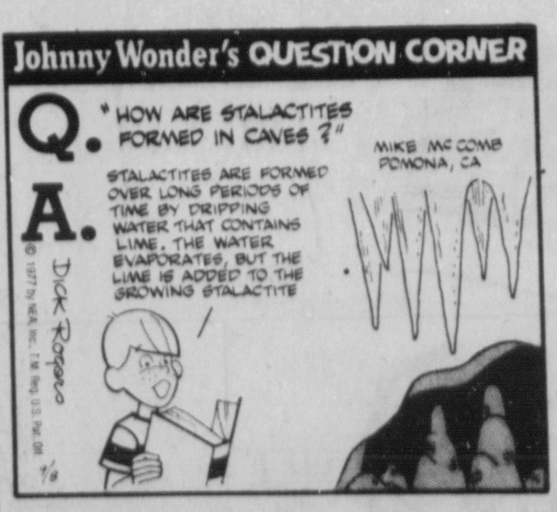
Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER



A stalactite (say sta-LAK-tight) is an icicle-shaped formation hanging from the ceiling of a cave.

Stalactites are formed over very long periods of time by dripping water. Each drop contains a tiny bit of lime or other mineral matter it has dissolved from the rock it has traveled through.

As it drips, some of the water evaporates, leaving behind a tiny deposit of the dissolved rock. The next drop adds to it, and the next.

The rock deposit gradually builds down, and in time it is a stalactite, a stone icicle hanging down from the ceiling.

Where the dripping water splashes to the floor, the stone material builds upward, like an upside-down icicle. This is called a stalagmite (say sta-LAG-might).

Sometimes the stalactite and stalagmite become so long that they meet to form a stone pillar. Many caves are filled with strangely shaped formations formed this way.

Some tension as nation's schools open

By The Associated Press

Schools opened today in Chicago, New York and other cities and towns with scattered threats of trouble because of busing or economic problems.

Anxious parents flooded Chicago school switchboards with calls as authorities took heavy security precautions for the opening with a voluntary busing program.

Superintendent Joseph Hannon says the desegregation plan will bring the nation's third-largest school district "closer to the 20th century." But 800 policemen and special crisis teams of school employes will be on hand to try to make the historic move a safe one.

About 1,139 students were expected to transfer from over-crowded schools in their neighborhoods — mostly black — to less-crowded, mostly-white schools in other sections of the city.

About half of the students were to ride buses to their new schools. The remainder were to take public transportation, using school-supplied transit tokens.

The voluntary transfer plan, costing an estimated $528,000 this year, is the first step toward a major integration effort in the fall of 1978. Chicago schools are under pressure from the state to integrate their classroom buildings.

The conservative faction of the Milwaukee school board Tuesday voted to allow parents to ignore a generally voluntary desegregation plan which has been placed in doubt by a federal court decision.

The board voted 9-6 to make compliance with the plan optional. One of the six supporters of the plan called the vote a "step backward."

The vote was taken after the U.S. 7th Circuit Court of Appeals told U.S. District Court Judge John W. Reynolds to review his 1976 directive under which the board was ordered to have 102 of its 155 schools satisfactorily integrated by this fall.

Reynolds refused to grant a motion by integrationist attorneys to sustain his directive. He told attorneys to file advisory briefs Sept. 16 on how they think he should proceed.

In New York, city high schools were to open their doors to about 350,000 students today, with 750,000 lower-level students scheduled to begin Thursday. Some problems were threatened for Thursday by several local school boards within the city. The local boards had wanted to start school next week, but the central school board chose the earlier date so that teachers could have an extra week off at midyear.

In the New York suburb of Yonkers, school was to open today as 1,600 teachers, who are not allowed to strike, announced they had been "locked out." The teachers and Yonkers officials had an overnight talk session in hopes of reaching a new contract agreement.

In Dayton, Ohio, officials prepared for the second year of a court-ordered busing plan today which affects 13,000 of the district's 37,763 students. Fifty-three per cent of the students are non-white.

In Cleveland, teachers were reassigned this year, with a goal of busing students next year. About 58 per cent of the system's students are nonwhite. School officials were scrambling to reopen eight schools they had planned to close this year. U.S. District Court Judge Frank J. Battisti ordered the schools open pending a decision on reassignment of pupils.

HELPS VOLUNTEER STUDENTS — The Rev. Jesse Jackson of Chicago, head of Operation PUSH, leads tiny pupils by the hand as they arrive at Chicago's Stevenson School on opening day Wednesday. Chicago this semester put into effect a voluntary school busing-racial balance program. Some 1,139 pupils chose the program according to school officials.

NOT TOO EXCITED — Robert Gilbert, 6, finds a comfortable perch on his lunch box as he waits on a Dayton, Ohio, corner for the school bus to transport him to his first day of school. A court-ordered racial balance plan now is in its second year at Dayton. No disruptions occurred in that western Ohio city.

TWA's widebody 1011. It's built for comfort.

The comfort you get from our big, widebody 1011 starts with one of the most important parts of any flight. The seat.

The seat in Coach on our widebody 1011 is extra wide. In fact, you can't get a wider seat on any plane and most have narrower seats. Our seats even have special thick cushioning and bigger armrests.

But that's just the beginning of the 1011 comfort story.

Take meal service. On a lot of planes you're served directly from meal carts. On our 1011 meal service is special.

Your food is cooked in our below-deck-galley, then served to you on individual trays from service centers. And since no carts are used in the aisles for serving in Coach, the aisles stay clearer, and you have more room to walk around and stretch your legs.

Then, take the technology of the widebody 1011. In a number of ways the 1011 has more advanced technology than the 747 or even the Concorde.

The widebody 1011 has one of the most advanced flight control systems in aviation today. Its computers make minute adjustments in the flight controls so that takeoffs, flights and especially landings are incredibly smooth. Also, our widebody 1011 has the luxurious Rolls-Royce engines. They deliver a smooth flow of quiet power.

Savannah plans to restore hundreds of Victorian homes

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP) — In a city whose entire downtown district is a national historical landmark, an effort is under way to restore hundreds of Victorian houses in a run-down neighborhood.

The residents, most of them black and poor, would stay in their homes under the plan, although some aspects of funding have not been worked out.

The nonprofit Savannah Landmark Rehabilitation Project is working to buy and restore 600 of the houses. They hope to rent the houses to present tenants with the help of federal rent subsidies.

Although the first tenants are scheduled to move in this winter, application for rent subsidies has yet to be approved.

A two-square-mile area of downtown Savannah, including cotton warehouses on the waterfront and Colonial houses, was renovated in the last decade.

That restoration stops just north of the Victorian District, 45 city blocks of ornate, gingerbread-trimmed houses, built between 1870 and 1900.

Once one of Savannah's most fashionable residential areas, the Victorian District now is made up of overcrowded, dilapidated homes subdivided into apartments.

The preservationists don't want to move into a poor neighborhood, fix it up and force the poor residents to move.

"We don't feel it's fair, decent or anything else to shove a whole bunch of people out," said Lee Adler III, an investment banker who has been a leader in the preservation of Savannah.

Project director Beth Reiter said the organization wants "all income groups and classes in this neighborhood.

"Low-income residents now pay rents that average $50 a month; the lowest rent is $35 a month. We want to provide decent housing ... at rents these people can afford," she said.

The organization obtained its first options on property in the district by using loans cosigned by individual backers. The minority-owned Carver State Bank helped in the financing. Administrative costs are partially paid by the National Endowment for the Arts.

A total of 18 buildings with 64 housing units have been purchased or placed under option.

The architectural features of restored houses will be preserved, but renovations will not be luxurious. Fireplaces in the old homes will be bricked over for insulation and wallboard will be used to cover crumbling plaster.

The group has met some resistance from wealthier residents. Some fear low-income tenants will abuse the restored property, or will be undesirable neighbors.

"That's just a stereotype," said Mrs. Reiter. Under the federal rent subsidy program, she said, prospective tenants "are interviewed to death anyway."

There's more to choosing a low-tar cigarette than just picking a number.

Any low-tar cigarette will give you a low-tar number. But there's something else that you should consider. We call it "filter feedback."

As you smoke, tar builds up on the tip of your cigarette filter. That's "filter feedback." Ordinary flush-tipped filters put that tar build-up flat against your lips.

And that's where low-tar Parliament has the advantage. Parliament's filter is recessed to keep tar buildup from touching your lips. So there's no "filter feedback." All you get is that smooth Parliament taste.

Chaffey takes on San Dimas look

By JIM McCONNELL
PB Staff Writer

Chaffey College football coach Mike Merandi has discovered it pays to go to church . . . in more ways than one.

Merandi, who will start his second season at the helm of the Panthers Saturday when they entertain Reedley Junior College, came up with a top-notch assistant coach and, indirectly, four promising freshmen gridders, through a little "Christian fellowship".

The Chaffey mentor has been a friend of former San Dimas High coach Bob Baiz for several years through their church, Our Lady of the Assumption in Claremont.

This summer, after Baiz resigned his coaching duties at San Dimas, he and Merandi began to discuss a possible assistant's job at Chaffey.

Baiz proved to be receptive to the idea, and as a result he has signed on to tutor the CC tackles and tight ends this season.

Partly as a by-product of that move, four of Baiz' players from last year's Hacienda League champion Saints squad decided to attend Chaffey and play for Merandi and their ex-prep skipper. The four are tackles Sonny LaFargue and Bob Tatalovich, running back Bob Pleasant and quarterback Don Hargett.

LaFargue already has nailed down a starting berth as an offensive lineman for Chaffey, while Pleasant, Hargett and Tatalovich are in the thick of battles for jobs at their positions.

"Bob will be a great stabilizing factor on our coaching staff," Merandi said of his new assistant. "He's got 17 years of experience in this game, and that's helped us out already. He's a tremendously knowledgable coach and a great guy to work with."

Merandi also admitted that Baiz' presence on the Panther staff helps explain why the four former S.D. players decided to come to the Alta Loma campus.

"We don't go out of our district to recruit, and we didn't in this case," said the Chaffey coach. "However, I'm certain the fact that Bob joined our staff has a lot to do with four of his former players deciding to come to Chaffey.

"They all indicated a desire to continue to play under Bob, who they had greatly admired in high school. Heck, I'm not going to tell them they can't come here. We're glad to have them. They are fine football players."

Merandi was especially high on LaFargue, who was the Pomona Valley Defensive Player of the Year last fall as a senior at S.D.

"Sonny was originally slated to go to Long Beach State, but apparently that school and program weren't what he had thought they were going to be.

"We'll use him as our quick-side tackle, and a little later in the season I want to try him out at linebacker and see how he does there. He is a class kid all the way. He has the ability, barring injuries, to be a real blue-chip college player on offense or defense."

While LaFargue has helped stabilize the Panther offensive line, most other starting jobs remain wide-open heading into Chaffey's opener Saturday night vs. Reedley, a school from Central California.

Merandi indicated that the Panther quarterbacking duties will be shared by three freshmen vs. Reedley. John Gable, from Chaffey High, Brian Potter, from Damien, and San Dimas' Hargett will all see action.

"We started out in practice with seven QBs, and finally have narrowed it down to these three," Merandi explained. "We'll give them all a chance in our non-league games, and settle on one for the Mission Conference contests."

Upland High product Gary Carr figures to start at one running back position, a slot he held down last year for CC. The other spot is up for grabs between Pleasant, Ontario High's Marcus Jennings and Upland's Mark Chapman.

Defensively, Merandi is counting on his only two returning starters from last year's unit. They are lineman Marty Edens and defensive back Vivi Bernal, both from Chino. Yet another former Cowboy, Bob McMichael, is also in the running for a starting defensive lineman berth.

Dodgers show joy, concern

Progress Bulletin
Sports
Pomona, California ■ Thursday, September 8, 1977

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

ATLANTA — There was both joy and concern in the Dodger clubhouse Wednesday night.

The joy was over the hitting of Ron Cey and the pitching of rookie Dennis Lewallyn and veteran reliever Elias Sosa.

The aforementioned combined to produce a 5-2 Dodger victory that put the Angelenos 12½ games ahead of the about-to-be-dethroned champion Cincinnati Reds.

Since the staggering Reds were shocked 6-3 by the San Francisco Giants, the Dodgers' magic number was reduced by two which makes it 11 going into tonight's game.

But manager Tommy Lasorda is concerned over Burt Hooton's pitching arm. Hooton started Wednesday night but was removed by Lasorda after two innings.

"I was concerned with the way he was throwing," said Lasorda. It wasn't just that his control was off. He was throwing the ball wild high, wild low, too far outside and too far inside.

"His elbow has been bothering him and I wanted to know if it was troubling him tonight. But he said it wasn't. I told him I wanted him to tell the truth because his arm is more important than this one game. Then he wouldn't answer me."

Both Atlanta runs were unearned because of Davey Lopes' errant throw on a perfect double play ball.

But both Hooton walks came in the inning, the second. Worst of all, with the bases loaded and an 0-2 count on Roland Office, Hooton hit Office with a pitch that was way inside to force in the second run.

"It looked to me like he was holding up because his arm was bothering him," Lasorda said.

All the 6-4, 200-pound Lewallyn did was respond with four scoreless innings. In that span, he allowed just one hit, struck out two and didn't walk anyone.

Only four balls were hit out of the infield off Lewallyn in that span.

"He did a hell of a job," Lasorda said, "a super job. I won't hesitate to use him again."

Cey and Sosa also did super jobs.

Cey smashed two home runs and a single and drove in three runs. That gives him 27 home runs and 102 runs batted in, tops on the club.

He also broke his own club record for homers and RBIs by a Dodger third baseman.

"It (the record) means a great deal to me," said Cey. "It's the third time I've set a new club mark in those categories. But I wouldn't say this is my best year.

"I don't think I've been as selective a hitter and so my average is down and I'm striking out more. I'll take credit for the home runs but the runs batted in came because the other guys are getting on base."

Cey has murdered the Braves this year.

In 14 games he is batting .366 with six home runs, a triple, five doubles and 21 runs batted in.

"The altitude here is conducive to the ball carrying farther," he said. "But I've never gone up and tried to hit a homer. Guys like (Jeff) Burroughs and (Dave) Kingman can drive a ball out any time in any park.

"But I don't think I'm strong enough to do that. I have to get my pitch. Tonight I was fortunate enough to get two of them."

Dusty Baker also homered, his 23rd, a solo shot (as was Cey's first) in the Dodger fourth as the Angelenos played long ball with the Braves. They now have hit 164 this year.

But they might as well have played deadball. Only 4,013 turned out on a rainy night that saw the start of the game delayed 53 minutes.

Sosa struck out Jerry Royster and Office and got Burroughs to ground into a force out to end the inning. In three innings, Sosa allowed one single, struck out three and didn't walk anyone.

He currently is the Dodgers' most reliable reliever and his ERA is down to 2.28.

DODGER DATA — Don Sutton (13-8) and Phil Niekro (14-17) start in the series windup tonight. Then it's on to Cincinnati for three games.

The Dodgers now are 10-4 against the Braves, 6-2 in Atlanta.

Sandoval to spar tonight

LOS ANGELES — Pomona's Alberto "Superfly" Sandoval will be one of 12 boxers in action tonight at the Olympic Auditorium in a special sparring session.

Tonight's sparring session is a preview of the Olympic's Sept. 13 card which will feature two world title bouts and four other feature matches.

There will be a $1 admission charge for tonight's exhibition. Each boxer will spar three to five rounds.

In addition to Sandoval, fighters slated to see action are welterweight champ Carlos Palomino, featherweight champ Danny López, and their challengers on Sept. 13, Everaldo Azevedo and Jose Torres.

Also in action tonight will be Olympic Games gold medalists lightweight Howard Davis and lightheavyweight Michael Spinks, and heavyweights John Tate and Eddie "The Animal" Lopez.

Sandoval is scheduled to meet Rafael Rubio in a 10-round flyweight bout on the 13th.

CONCENTRATION

Tracy Austin, 14, bites her tongue as she awaits a serve from Betty Stove Wednesday in the U.S. Open quarterfinals at Forest Hills. Stove ousted the youngster, 6-2, 6-2.

Keough, Parrish shake up majors

A pair of local high school products took big first steps in their promising major league baseball careers Wednesday.

Matt Keough, former Pomona High player, made his first big league start for the Oakland A's while Lance Parrish, perhaps the best athlete ever produced by Walnut High, starred while playing in only his second major league game for the Detroit Lions.

Parrish hit his first home run while going 3-for-4 with four runs scored and four RBI to lead the Tigers to an 11-2 victory over the Orioles in the second game of a doubleheader. Parrish, an outstanding catching prospect at catcher, was promoted from the Tigers' Evansville farm club last week. Detroit's first pick in the 1974 June draft had 25 homers and 91 RBI at Evansville.

Keough, a converted outfielder making his first major league start, held the White Sox to four hits in seven innings before going down to a 5-1 defeat.

"He's got good potential and very good stuff," Manager Bob Lemon of the White Sox said of Lemon. "He has the poise of a veteran pitcher right now."

Keough, 22, started the season as an infielder in the A's farm system but switched over to pitching because he felt it would give him a better chance to make the major leagues.

"I thought my future was pitching," Keough said. He was a pitcher in high school before switching to the infield when he signed a professional contract.

The White Sox scored two runs off Keough in the second inning on a triple by veteran Don Kessinger.

"It felt funny to be pitching to Kessinger," Keough said. "He played against my father in the major leagues."

Matt is the son of former Pomona High great Marty Keough, who had a long career with several major league teams.

Kessinger remembered Keough's father. "It's kind of scary to think I've been around that long," he said, "but I started when I was very young. The kid is a very good pitcher."

Manager Bobby Winkles of the A's said Keough would be a starting pitcher for the remainder of the season.

"He pitched well enough to get another chance," Winkles said. "He threw all his pitches well and had good control."

Evert, Stove too much

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Chris Evert beat the past and Betty Stove beat the future to advance to their semifinal matchup at the U.S. Open tennis championships.

The top-seeded Miss Evert provided a barometer for Billie Jean King's continuing singles comeback Wednesday night with a 6-2, 6-0 victory over the former queen of women's tennis.

About 4½ hours earlier, Tracy Austin, the 14-year-old future queen of tennis, drove her Cinderella carriage to center court. But Miss Stove turned the clock to midnight with a powerful 6-2, 6-2 triumph.

In the other women's quarterfinals matches today, No. 2 seed Martina Navratilova, the Czech expatriate now playing out of Dallas, faced No. 10 Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia and third-seeded Virginia Wade of Britain met Wendy Turnbull, the No. 12 seed from Australia.

With all the hoopla attached to Miss Austin, the most famous school girl this side of Amy Carter, a pair of men sneaked less dramatically into the semifinals.

Guillermo Vilas, the No. 4 seed from Argentina, could do no wrong in his 6-1, 6-1, 6-0 rout of unseeded Ray Moore of South Africa. Vilas has a Saturday semifinal date with Harold Solomon, the No. 12 seed from Silver Spring, Md., who wore down No. 10 Dick Stockton of Carrolton, Tex. 6-4, 6-4, 6-2.

The other semifinal pairing will be determined today. Brian Gottfried, the No. 3 seed from Lauderhill, Fla., plays surprising Corrado Barazzutti of Italy and second-seeded Jimmy Connors, Belleville, Ill., meets fifth-rated Manuel Orantes of Spain.

While school bells were beginning to ring around the country, Miss Austin—set to enter the ninth grade in Rolling Hills, Calif. a week from today—was given a professional tennis lesson from Miss Stove, the 32-year-old native of The Netherlands.

"She just overpowered me," said Tracy, standing tall on the court at 5 feet and 90 pounds. "I was lucky to get in a rally. Most of the time she just put the ball away off her serve, and hit winners off mine. She was too strong for me."

Chino girl gets to meet Dodgers

For the second consecutive year, a girl will represent the Pomona area as the honorary bat "boy" for the Dodgers Monday night on the Progress-Bulletin's annual night at Dodger Stadium.

Ten-year-old Becky Morgan of Chino was selected the winner in this year's annual batboy promotion co-sponsored by the P-B and the Dodgers.

Winning this year's contest is a special treat considering a record number of boys and girls entered the essay competition on why they would like to be a Dodger batboy.

The Chino girl, a fifth grader at Newman School, will get to meet her favorite Dodgers before Monday's game against the San Diego Padres plus receive an uniform and autographed baseball plus the honor of treating her father, mother and 15-year-old brother to the game.

Proving it's a girl's year, three of the four runners-up are also females.

Also receiving two tickets to Monday's game plus an autographed baseball are Kathleen Olin, 12, of Claremont; Ann Anderson, 13, of Chino; and Helen Wolff, 15, of Pomona.

This will be Becky Morgan's first-ever trip to Dodger Stadium so she is especially excited about Monday's

BECKY MORGAN

"When my parents told me I won the contest, I threw my baseball cap in the air I was so excited," Becky said. "Up to now, I have just been able to watch the Dodgers on television. Now I will get to meet all of them."

Becky, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Morgan, is the subject of plenty of envy from the boys at Hillview Acres in Chino.

"I'm about the only girl around," she said. Her parents are houseparents at the facility.

Becky's winning essay was a poem.

Poly takes unknown grid squad

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

With only three starters back on offense and one on defense, Cal Poly will be taking an unknown football team to Tacoma, Wash. Saturday afternoon for the 1977 season opener.

A lot has happened at Poly since Puget Sound beat the Broncos, 26-10, to close out the 1976 campaign at Pomona.

Naturally, a new coach means a new system plus personnel.

Jones was busy during the off-season recruiting freshmen and was successful in landing 32, most of them from within a 30-mile radius of the Poly campus.

But Jones hasn't had the opportunity yet of seeing his team against an opponent as yet.

"We're going into this opening [illegible] important for us," Jones said. "A lot of people around Poly are waiting to see what happens so we need to establish ourselves for the long road ahead."

Jones has found the biggest difference in coaching college ball is the chore of taking so many freshmen and trying to teach them Poly's system in just three weeks of fall practice.

At South Hills, he was able to build a program which taught the system from the freshman class up.

"Also, getting on a plane and traveling to Tacoma is a little more than a bus ride to La Puente," Jones jokes.

While the Broncs are basically inexperienced, Jones does have the keys to a good passing attack back in quarterback Sammy Ross and wide receiver Teddy Myles, Poly's top candidate for post-season honors.

Ross, who took over for the injured Leo Costa in the final two games last year, has won Saturday's starting assignment over Steve Taylor [illegible] former Pomona High star who came to Poly from Mt. San Antonio College.

The other returning offensive starter is tight end Brad Carter, who came to Poly last season after UC Riverside dropped football.

Dale Mitchell is the starting flanker.

Dominic Licavoli, a big (6-3, 220) product of Upland High and Chaffey College, has won the starting job at fullback while Larry Strange, who rushed for 938 yards last year at Mt. San Jacinto JC, is the opening tailback after winning the job over freshmen Bill Hilliker, the CIF 2A Player of the Year at Antelope Valley High, and Kevin Morgan of Walnut High.

The starting offensive line will open with guards Bill Henry and Jay Fleming plus tackles Tom Mondok and Jerry Bellettiere, a MSAC transfer.

Henry saw a lot of action last year while Mondok (6-6, 275) started on [illegible]

Two JC transfers - Gary Hallstrom (College of Sequoias and Dan Beebe (Walla Walla, Wash.) - are battling for the starting center assignment.

Nose guard Rich Force is the only defensive starter who opened against Puget Sound last November.

Jones will be using three down linemen in Force plus tackles Bryan Chandler and Joe Pratchard.

The four starting linebackers will include lettermen Steve Boron plus JC transfers Jay Giangregorio (MSAC), Scott Pickwith (MSAC) and Bob Price (Walla Walla, Wash.).

Michael Schmel from Riverside City College will handle the punting while either Vittitoe or Fleming will [illegible] the place kicking.

Winners treat father, brother

On why she would like to be a batgirl, Becky wrote:

"I'd like to stay in the mountains and be a lodger. But more than that I'd like to be batgirl for the Dodgers.

"I think being batgirl would be fun 'cause I know the Dodgers are number one'

"If I could be batgirl I'd be awful proud. I promise I'll cheer really loud!

"I'd be a good batgirl and pick up the bats, and put them away as quick as skat."

The Barnes boy, who just moved here from Indiana last month, wanted to be the Dodger batboy so he could take his father, Lynn, to the game.

"I would like to take my dad to see his favorite team play," Ty wrote. "He has to be one of the biggest fans around and was my age when he started to like the Dodgers. He has taken his time to coach my team and this is my way of repaying him.

"Please help me to show my dad how proud of him I am. My dad doesn't know I'm writing this and I would like to surprise him."

Ann Anderson is anxious to treat her 14-year-old brother, Andy, to the game.

Andy broke his leg and severed an artery this summer in a Pony League game.

"Instead of writing this for myself, I think my brother is far more deserving than anyone," Ann wrote. "He's really good and I'm sure becoming a Dodger batboy would keep him trying even harder. He runs pretty fast but now has a slight limp which will go away soon. I am sure if he is picked, he will remember this the rest of his life."

Kathleen Olin, an eighth grader at Our Lady of the Assumption School in Claremont, promises to be a good batgirl.

"I know you are looking for someone who would be alert and interested in the game. Well that's me. I would try to be the best batboy the Dodgers have ever had," she wrote.

The young Claremonter speaks out for all girls.

"I don't think it's fair boys get more attention in sports," she said. "I've always wanted to be on a boy's Little League team but my dad wouldn't let me. Not because I wasn't good enough but because he thinks boys should play boys sports and girls should play girls sports. He would be so proud of me if I was selected as batboy."

Helen Wolff, a junior at Pomona High, wrote, "I would like to become a Dodger batboy so I can learn about the spirit of togetherness and so I can obtain a positive attitude.

"Tommy Lasorda has that certain personality that generates togetherness and a positive attitude. If I had a chance to know him, I would be able to understand better those attitudes."

Hartzell heeds advice

ANAHEIM (AP) — For Paul Hartzell, travel was enlightening.

The California Angels spent three days recently in Baltimore, where pitcher Hartzell was reunited with scout Walter Youse, who signed him to his first contract.

Youse imparted some advice and the young righthander used it Wednesday to propel the Angels to a 4-1 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

"Walter has seen me pitch more than anyone," said Hartzell after his five-hit victory raised his record to 7-9. "He told me to raise my arm more when I'm throwing. I hurt my shoulder in spring training. The ball doesn't sink as much when I raise it, but I get more strike-outs."

Hartzell needed those in the first inning. Von Joshua walked and Sixto Lexcano was safe on a two-base error. Hartzell struck out Cecil Cooper and Don Money. Then, after walking Sal Bando intentionally, he struck out Robin Yount.

"That's the best fastball I've had in two months," Hartzell said. "It got me out of a lot of trouble.

"Have I ever struck out the side before? Heavens, no. Once or twice I've struck out two in the same inning at some level of baseball."

One batter who wasn't striking out was Don Baylor of the Angels. He smashed a two-run homer and a double off loser Jerry Augustine, 12-16.

Baylor has collected seven hits in nine at-bats to raise his average to .258. He has been on base eight times in eight appearances. His 20th home run gave California a 2-0 lead in the second inning.

Cecil Cooper's 16th homer cut the advantage to 2-1 the next inning. But the Angels put the game away with an unearned run in the fifth. Rance Mulliniks walked, advanced on a sacrifice by Gil Flores and scored on a single by Thad Bosley when catcher Charlie Moore dropped the throw to the plate.

Rams go with Walker

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A 25-year-old rookie kicker from University of Southern California is the Los Angeles Rams' sixth new punter in seven years.

Glen Walker got the job Wednesday when the National Football League team cut punter Rusty Jackson, along with three other players.

Rams Coach Chuck Knox also said that Joe Namath probably would be the starting quarterback Friday in the final preseason game against Oakland.

But, he said, it doesn't necessarily mean Namath has the job. Rather, it's his turn to start, since Pat Haden started last. The two will probably each play a half, as they have been doing, Knox said.

Cut along with Jackson were veteran center Ed Flanagan, and rookies Ron McCartney of Tennessee and Art Best of Notre Dame and Kent State. Best was claimed by the Chicago Bears on waivers.

Walker has punted 10 times in the five pre-season games, averaging 41.1 yards. Jackson had punted the same number of times, with a 34.9 average. Jackson was the punter last year, replacing Duane Carrell, the 1975 punter who replaced Mike Burke, the 1974 punter who followed Dave Chapple, who replaced Pat Studsill in 1972.

The Rams must cut five more players by Monday to reduce the squad to the required 43 for the start of the regular season.

Walker, a 6-foot-2, 22-pound Torrance native living in Gardena, was signed last winter as a free agent. As a Trojan senior, his punts averaged 37.5 yards. He also kicked 10 of 19 field goals last fall, four of them over 40 yards.

Cosmos to host Soccer Bowl '78

NEW YORK (AP) — The North American Soccer League's 1978 championship game, Soccer Bowl '78, will be played in late August in Giants Stadium, home of the NASL champion Cosmos, league Commissioner Phil Woosnam announced Tuesday.

Giants Stadium in East Rutherford, N.J. was the historic site for the largest soccer crowd in North American history earlier this month, when 77,691 turned out to see the Cosmos play Fort Lauderdale. In the Cosmos' last two home playoff games, they drew 150,000 fans.

Young PAL boxer to appear on TV

Promising young Pomona Athletic League boxer David "Kido" Rodriguez has been invited to participate in a special amateur boxing card in Victorville on Sept. 24.

That card is being staged by ex-heavyweight champion Jack Dempsey and is slated to be televised live.

Rodriguez recently posted a win in the Pacific Coast AAU Boxing Championships over the Labor Day weekend. Rodriguez knocked out his foe in the second round in an 80-pound division elimination bout.

"Kido" is trained by his father David Rodriguez, Sr. The 14-year old will be a sophomore at Pomona High this fall.

Rodriguez is the National AAU Junior Olympic champion in his class. He won that title earlier this year in Green Bay, Wisconsin. His eventual goal is to become a professional boxer out of the PAL stable.

Claremont sets AYSO signups

Tryouts will be conducted one week later (Sept. 17) at Griffith Field behind Sumner School and is mandatory for those interested in playing during league action.

Final signups will be held at Taylor Hall Sept. 16, from 6-8 p.m.

Oakland A's rookie Mitchell Page, former baseball standout at Cal Poly, hit .478 with five home runs and was unanimously named the American League Player of the Week, league president Lee MacPhail announced today.

The outfielder drove in 11 runs during the week and had two triples to win the award for the second time.

Page shared the award back in April with Jim Palmer of the Baltimore Orioles. The former Bronco is the only Oakland player to win the honor this year.

COLONY PARK ON 4th STREET IN ONTARIO will be the scene of final signups for the Ontario-Montclair Region 66 AYSO season. Commissioner Waynn Pearson says the signups will be in Colony Park Recreation Center from 9 to noon on Saturday, Sept. 17, for all players from age 7 through 18.

CLAREMONT'S RICK DAVIS IS OFF TO THE RACES as they say. The former Damien High ace has left Santa Clara University in his sophomore season to join the USA National Team upon invitation of USA coach Walt Chyzowych.

At Damien, Davis played the fireman role, playing where he was needed most and his versatility always stood him in good stead. Chyzowych has been using Davis exclusively as a wing striker and Davis' goal output in the company of nationally selected players is staggering . . . scoring 11 in a recent series of games on the east coast.

Davis scored one of the three last Sunday in New York when the USA defeated Deportiva Universitaria of Quito, Eucador 3-0 in the opening game of a 4-country tournament.

The second game of the doubleheader saw the famous Millionaires of Bogota, Colombia being tied by Alianza of Lima, Peru . . . by 0-0. The Alianza club fields six of Peru's World Cup starters who have already qualified for the final 16 of the 1978 World Cup.

ENGLAND HAS A NEW WORLD CUP COACH in the person of Ron Greenwood replacing Don Revie who took off for Saudi Arabia and a big money contract. Greenwood is 54 and has won the FA Cup and the European Cup-Winners Cup as coach of West Ham of London.

Greenwood brings with him as assistant the world famous Geoff Hurst who played on those West Ham teams and made World Cup history with his hat-trick against West Germany in the 1966 WC final game. Their work is cut out for them. England is one-down to Italy and must overcome a 3-goal deficit in their return match in England set for November 16. That should be some game!

CLIVE TOYE, THE FORMER LONDON SOCCER WRITER whose globe-girdling treks finally got Pele to sign for the Cosmos, has taken a similar position for the Chicago Sting of the NASL and is already promising exciting new name additions to the Windy City club. Toye says he is in contact with at least 15 or 20 "name" players who just may be with Chicago before the 1978 season opens. We're all ears.

ST. LOUIS UNIVERSITY OPENED THE NEW COLLEGE SEASON with a 1-0 win over U of Mo. St. Louis has copped 10 NCAA Division One titles so far and U of Mo. has a Division Three NCAA title season behind them.

St. Louis U has just returned from a preseason trip to Mexico winning one in Guadalajara (5,000 ft. elevation . . . like Denver) and losing three in Mexico City (6,700-ft.) where the American boys had a rough time with the oxygen challenge all visiting teams experience.

THE NEXT BIG ALTITUDE CHALLENGE falls to Hungary who in eliminating Greece and Russia in WC action must now face Bolivia in order to make the final 16. The first of the two-game qualifying series will be Oct. 29 in Budapest but the second game is in Bolivia's 11,000-ft. high stadium on Nov. 30. The Hungarian coach plans to arrive in altitudinous La Paz just one day before the game basing his strategy on the belief that "full impact of the oxygen challenge is not felt within the first 72 hours." Total goals will not be in effect and if a tie situation is effected there will be a December playoff in Central America.

THE COSMOS OPENED their postseason tour in Caracas where Pele played against his old striker, Jair, who now plays with Portuguesa of Venezuela. The home team played such a rough game against the Cosmos that Cosmo centerback Werner Roth was ejected for retaliating and Pele himself in appealing to the referee for control was shown the yellow card twice. Each time the yellow card was flashed against Pele the entire stadium voiced their backing of Pele's plea for a clean game by giving him an ovation. At one point the Cosmos were ready to walk off the field but Pele grouped them together and convinced them to finish the game. At game's end the capacity crowd flooded the field to give Pele their personal stamp of approval. The game ended 1-1 and the Cosmos are off to China for more action.

FRANZ BECKENBAUER'S MOVE TO THE COSMOS stopped his number of international appearances at 103 even declining other appearances before his move to the Cosmos. Like home run records hit in various sized parks the total is not always the real truth. Some countries have a more vigorous international games schedule and the opportunity to play international games is greater, or easier, as fits the level of play in different parts of the world. It is not likely that Antonio Carbajal would have been in five world cups if he had been a goalie in Europe, or conversely both Pele and Uwe Seeler could have played in five or more had they so wished.

SATURDAY'S INTERNATIONAL FRACAS on Channel 34 will be Argentina vs. Poland's "B" team. In succeeding weeks it will be Argentina vs. West Germany, Sept. 17, and vs. France Sept. 24. We're not used to such good soccer exposure. It's like a preview of the '78 WC.

THE NEW AMERICAN LEAGUE CHAMPIONS are the New Jersey Americans who downed the Sacramento Spirits last week in the title game at Rutgers Stadium in New Jersey. The Americans are mainly composed of American-born players who have a better opportunity to play regularly in the American League as opposed to the NASL.

FOUR OF THE U.S. NATIONAL SOCCER TITLES have fallen to western teams this year. The Santa Clara Broncos (Santa Clara's under-19 contingent of the university team) won the U.S. Junior crown; Univ. of San Francisco won the NCAA title; the Los Angeles Maccabees took the U.S. Open Cup championship and the Denver Kickers became U.S. Amateur champs for the first time.

THE SPREAD OF SOCCER TALENT is now apparent. Take St. Louis who have won 17 U.S. Junior Cups since 1945 with a strong youth program going back into the '20s. St. Louis has not made it past the semifinal the past few years and areas like Virginia and Texas and California and Washington State are challenging and sometimes winning against the old and established areas.

Credit goes to the strong national AYSO program (in 16 states now), the Pacific Soccer League, California Youth Soccer Association, the strong high school competition and the ever-increasing importance of the college scene. The path of a Rick Davis (youth/Damien/Santa Clara Univ.) or Gary Etherington (Virginia youth/U.S. Junior Champs to Cosmos) or Ty Keough (youth/U.S. Junior/St. Louis U/Olympic) among others is showing the way and should be a fine example for many youngsters who will be signing for their first season this very month. There's an exictement to it . . . and scholarships . . . don't ever forget that. Soccer is now on a scholarship level.

Actors troupe sets auditions

Actors Repertory Theater (ART), resident company at the Claremont Playhouse, will hold auditions for the fall acting workshop from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Sunday and from 2 to 5 p.m. Monday.

Those trying out should have a three-minute monologue prepared.

ART will also hold tryouts for its fall children's theater production, "Where to, Turelu?"

The characters are Turelu; Cesarine, a young woman from the country; Didiche, her younger sister; Gege, her brother, and Mac-Bluff, a traveling salesman.

Auditions are by cold reading. Applicants are requested to bring a photo or snapshot. Further information on both auditions can be obtained at 621-5005.

Opening at the Claremont Playhouse at 8 p.m. Friday is "The Innocents," a drama based on Henry James' "The Turn of the Screw." Tickets can be obtained at the box office.

'Act' cancels Monday showing

There will be no performance of "The Act" at the Pavilion of the Los Angeles Music Center Monday night. Tickets for this cancelled showing of the musical starring Liza Minnelli and Barry Nelson will be honored at the performance of Monday, Oct. 17.

The cancellation has been made in order to give Miss Minnelli and the cast a day of rest between two full weeks of performance. Normally, Los Angeles Civic Light Opera attractions play their second and third weeks back-to-back, with no day off, but the extraordinary demands of Miss Minnelli's role make it necessary to alter this schedule in order to provide a break between the two weeks.

SHAUN CASSIDY will sing his latest gold record, "That's Rock 'n' Roll," on the ABC/TV special, "Kaptain Kool and the Kongs Present ABC All-Star Saturday" at 8 p.m. Friday.

White House glances

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secret Service bodyguards assigned to White House duty often find themselves cast as sphinxlike witnesses to history. Some also become culture vultures, if only by osmosis.

Take the case of Richard Keiser, the chief of President Carter's bodyguard force. He has seen the durable musical "Man of La Mancha" so often it must seem like "The Impossible Dream," which of course is the hit song of the show.

Keiser first saw the musical with Lynda Bird Johnson, then his principal protectee, when Richard Kiley created the role on Broadway during the administration of Lyndon B. Johnson.

When Jose Ferrer took over the title role from Kiley, Lynda Bird returned for the fourth time. Of course, Keiser was present.

Keiser supposed he had seen the show for the last time when he took his wife to see it.

But this was not to be. He returned to "Man of La Mancha" at the National Theater here last month when the President and Mrs. Carter saw it with Kiley back as the star.

"It's a good thing I like it," said Keiser. "True it's one of my favorites. But the time I really enjoyed it was when I took my wife."

On the five other occasions, Keiser was too busy bodyguarding to concentrate on the action on stage.

The presidential playground at Camp David, Md., which Carter visits often and obviously enjoys, has been upgraded regularly, so far as the facilities are concerned, ever since President Franklin D. Roosevelt adopted it as a mountain retreat during World War II.

The latest improvement, now nearing completion, is a water project that, whatever he thinks of federal dam-building, Carter never considered vetoing.

It seems that a decision was made during Gerald R. Ford's presidency that something had to be done about Camp David's water supply.

For one thing, water pipes were largely laid out above ground. Now they're being buried.

More important, the camp's ancient water tower approached a state of collapse and could only be half filled lest it fall apart and cause a mountaintop flood. Carter and company are the beneficiaries of a new tower.

In his first seven months in office, Carter has been an enthusiastic devotee of the theater, music and ballet. However, he hasn't wasted any time on spectator sports — at least in public.

But just last Sunday he provided a hint that he watches some televised sports when he telephoned congratulations to 14-year-old Tracy Austin after a network broadcast of her preliminary-round win in the U.S. Open tennis tournament. Carter is a tennis player.

The last time Carter let it be known he was watching TV sports was when he tarried during his campaign to watch a few innings of the World Series. On that occasion, he placed phone calls to the managers of the contesting Cincinatti Reds and New York Yankees — and mixed up the names of the two men.

Kiddie porn books seized

LONDON (AP) — Police raiders seized thousands of pornographic books and movies featuring young children in London and other British cities during the weekend, Scotland Yard reported today.

No arrests were reported, but the Daily Mirror said the seized material was worth $350,000, including $100,000 worth in Birmingham.

The Yard said officers from the Obscene Publications Squad made one big haul in a West London porn shop and another in a London warehouse.

Sexual relations with children has been a major topic of newspaper discussion for two weeks, since a group named the Paedophile Information Exchange booked a conference room in a hotel for a public meeting to promote its campaign to lower the minimum age for sexual relations. A paedophile is a person who is sexually attracted to children.

Employes of the hotel threatened to hold a protest demonstration if the group was allowed to meet there. A group of mothers threatened to storm the building. The hotel cancelled the booking.

Members of Parliament and several organizations condemned the group. Scotland Yard investigated it but said it found no grounds for prosecution.

A 13-member committee set up by Home Secretary Merlyn Rees began a review of the obscenity laws today as the first step toward codifying and clarifying them.

Saturday, Sandra Mayhew, a 26-year-old schoolteacher in Sussex, was acquitted of a charge of having had sexual relations last year with one of her pupils, an 11-year-old boy.

Denies link

WASHINGTON (AP) — Karen DeCrow was linked by the FBI in 1953 to a group trying to save condemned spies Ethel and Julius Rosenberg but the former head of the National Organization for Women says she was just 15 and interested in "clothes, boys and cashmere sweaters" then.

Ms. DeCrow learned of the Rosenberg link in 44 pages of heavily censored FBI files on her that she obtained through the Freedom of Information Act.

Ms. DeCrow, a Syracuse, N.Y., lawyer, says "my memory of myself (in 1953) is that I was completely nonpolitical...it's possible someone came up to me in the schoolyard and asked me to sign a petition but I don't recall anything like that."

The memo also said that a suspected security risk whose name was deleted, "received correspondence from Karen Lipschultz" (Ms. DeCrow's name before she married) in 1955. She said she knows of no New York political figures to whom she would have been writing at the age of 17.

Several of the memos concern Ms. DeCrow's 1969 and 1970 activities in the women's movement, primarily in Syracuse, but there were no entries for the years she was NOW's president.

Ms. DeCrow said her files show "the most incredible waste of the taxpayer's money" in compiling such information.

Cadets try hand at 'ruling' world

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP) — The people shout for "more food," "more heat." World leaders watch as nuclear waste destroys the environment and supplies of fossil fuels run out.

A pessimist's vision of the future? The plot of a new disaster movie? No, it's all part of a computerized course at the Air Force Academy to teach students what could happen if energy and other resources aren't used wisely.

In the course, students play world leaders deciding uses of energy and other resources and then feeding the decisions into a computer.

The computer, which has information about fuel supplies, energy use, population increases and other factors, then tells the students what effects their decisions would have over periods of hundreds of years.

During a recent class, five students chosen to "rule" the world decided to maintain current standards of living. The computer told them their actions would exhaust world supplies of fossil fuels such as coal and oil in 145 years, while piling up huge amounts of atomic wastes.

Their classmates pretended to be the world's population, shouting "more food," "more heat" and "more cars," while red lights indicating shortages began to appear on a computer terminal.

"It is a psychological thing," said Capt. Bill Noll, the chemistry instructor who helped develop the computer program for the class.

"Being good politicians and world rulers, they want to keep the people from screaming. So the last thing they cut is the standard of living."

A second group of five cadets tried to maintain food production by cutting back on other areas but had little better luck. After 145 years, Noll said, "All we are doing is eating; everything else is gone."

A third group of students began an accelerated program to develop alternative energy resources and made cuts in automobile use, air conditioning, heating and other areas. The standard of living dropped considerably but food levels remained adequate and the environment stayed healthy.

Then, the computer told the students, as new sources of energy came into use the standard of living began to rise again. At 550 years, where Noll stopped the computer clock, the world's fossil fuel supplies had run out but new energy sources were able to take their place.

"We are doing very little to develop new energy sources," Noll said, and conservation is still not very popular. "Somehow we have got to turn this lifestyle around."

TUT HANDLERS — It's rare for a person to be able to touch the gold mask of Tutankamun but Barbara Hall of the University of Chicago and Yale Kneeland are old hands at it as they unpack the treasure in New Orleans. The mask will be encased in glass when it goes on display.

New Orleans rolling out red carpet for King Tut

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — As surely as Washington breeds bureaucrats and Detroit builds cars, New Orleans boosts tourism. A faded Southern belle, depending, like the fabled Blanche DuBois, on the kindness of strangers for survival.

But never, never in all its "Bring - me - your - friends, your neighbors, yourconventioneers - yearning - to - make - whoopee" days, has New Orleans seen anything like King Tut.

While the rest of the country sees art, New Orleans sees dollar signs.

"The direct economic impact of the Treasures of Tutankhamun on the city is estimated between $20 million and $30 million," the mayor's office boasted in a press release about the exhibit which goes on display here Sept. 18. "When the dollar begins to turn over in the community, the impact becomes between $150-160 million."

And, said the mayor himself, Moon Landrieu: "It will help businesses, it will help the people who work for those businesses and it will boost the sales tax collection."

In neither of the exhibit's first two stops, Washington and Chicago, nor its next one, Los Angeles, did public officials made statements like that. Even their convention and tourist bureaus made no such claim ahead of time and are still hesitant to do so afterwards.

"I don't want to sound like we are jaded, but this is the national trade and convention center of America," said Allen Goldsmith of the Chicago Convention and Tourism Bureau. "People took a wait-and-see attitude before Tut arrived. It was not that big a deal when it opened, although it later became one, of course."

But in New Orleans, even the director of the museum where Tut will appear for four months calls the exhibit's effect on business "a four-month Super Bowl," an event which also will be here Jan. 15 — Tut's final day on display.

"The economic consequences of the Super Bowl are compacted within one week," said John Bullard, the direcor of the New Orleans Museum of Art. "We'll be generating that kind of activity for four months. And for that to happen with a cultural event instead of a sports event or Mardi Gras is a first here and impresses the business community."

Travel agents and the hotel and motel industry are so impressed, in fact, they wish the museum could accommodate more than the 650,000 persons it says will file past the golden images of the boy king. More than 118,000, most of them outof-towners, will come in group tours, which the museum stopped booking in June because of space.

"We're delighted the museum will benefit from this," said Ray Liuzza, the vice president of the Hotel and Motel Association. "But we just hope we don't turn down all of this business, and then find out there is time available and we've lost it."

In all, the city projects that more than 200,000 people will come here from more than 100 miles away just to see King Tut.

What they will find is a town without much previous history of art appreciation gone Tutmad and tie-in crazy. A designer is selling a Tut sleeping bag for $140. Chic jewelry stores are hawking golden scarabs and 5,000-year-old mummy beads.

A local orchestra specializing in nostaglia is pushing a record album called "Old King Tut." A theater company's next offering is "Tut, Tut," an original spoof of mummy movies.

And 250 couples have paid $500 to $1,500 to spend a preview weekend hobnobbing with biggies like the Egyptian ambassador and Louisiana's governor and seeing the exhibit ahead of the rest of the public.

"This town has never seen anything like this," said Bullard in words echoed by art and money lovers alike. "And I doubt that it ever will again."

Rapids exciting lure for white water enthusiasts

OHIOPYLE, Pa. (AP) — With a roar and a splash, the Youghiogheny River offers quick baptism for white water enthusiasts.

The Entrance Rapids, the first of eight foaming thrills on the 12-mile excursion into the wilderness of the Appalachian Mountains, lie just below the Ohiopyle Falls at the start of the seven-hour trip.

"Be prepared to get wet — and paddle," said Jon Kruper, a former professional guide with White Water Adventurers who commanded our two-man raft. "This isn't a surrey ride."

The raft crashed through the rocks with a whomp, spraying water on a pair of furiously paddling adventurers. "Welcome to white water," said Kruper, clad in a mandatory life jacket and enjoying the sunny summer afternoon.

What the Youghiogheny (pronounced YOCK-eh-gay-nee) seems like is a series of roller coaster rides, except you have control of the trip and the excitement is prolonged.

"The nicest part of the trip is that you have to participate. You just don't sit back and float down. You have to guide and steer. You become part of the river, or else," said Kruper, a 27-year-old physical education teacher.

Paddling is essential. Forward and backward strokes determine which way the raft goes in the swift, northward flowing current. Without steering, rafts will go sideways, careening into rocks or getting pinned.

The Youghiogheny, which runs through Ohiopyle State Park, has become a hot tourist spot. The river is rated among the top white water stretches in the East, and nearly a million people have answered its challenge.

Water flow is controlled by a U.S. Army Corps of Engineers dam upstream, but the water level has been low this summer because of a dry spell. The trip is a little rockier, but the excitement is there.

The rapids, which have colorful names like Double Hydraulic or Cucumber Chute, demand total attention. Calmer stretches in between allow your pulse to slow and provide an opportunity to enjoy the wilderness setting.

The river winds through a pristine valley surrounded by hardwood trees, hemlocks and mountain laurel. No roads lead into the lush valley in southwestern Pennsylvania, about 90 minutes by car from Pittsburgh.

The only access is by raft or kayak, although a Chessie Systems rail line parallels the river in spots.

Much of the river bed is solid rock. The water is quite deep in spots; knee high in others.

If you don't get thrown overboard during the trip, you can beach the raft and body surf with the current. Sneakers are essential to protect your feet from the jutting rocks.

The rafting season runs from May through October.

Market activity

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks turned mixed Thursday amid investor concern about interest rates. Trading was moderately active.

Analysts said some traders may have cashed in on the modest gains they made in the past week. Many retreated to the sidelines to await the Federal Reserve Board's weekly report on the nation's money supply.

The money supply report could have some bearing on short-term interest rates, which have been rising. Investors were fearful the nation's major banks would raise their prime lending rate a quarter point to 7¼ per cent soon. The prime rate now stands at 7 per cent.

Against that background, the Dow Jones industrial average, a 17.50-point winner the previous five sessions, was off 1.47 points to 874.92 shortly before noon EDT. Of the 1,558 issues crossing the tape, 511 advanced, 496 declined and 551 remained unchanged.

New York Stock Exchange volume at the two-hour mark amounted to about 7,300,000 shares, up from the 6,870,000 traded during the same period Wednesday.

Norton Simon was the most active NYSE issue, up ⅜ to 21⅛. Ogden Corp. was second, unchanged at 24 following an over-the-counter block trade of 100,000 shares at 24 bid. General Telephone & Electronics was third, off ⅛ to 31⅜.

Allegheny Ludlum was ahead ⅛ and Chemetron was off ½. Crane Co. was unchanged. Allegheny Ludlum and Chemetron both filed suit to block a Crane offer for Chemetron. Allegheny and Chemetron have agreed to merge.

Broadcasting stocks were lower after CBS-TV President Robert Wussler told securities analysts specials could begin to pinch network profits. ABC, which failed to gain top ratings with its "Washington: Behind Closed Doors" special, was down a point. CBS and RCA, parent of NBC, were off ¼ each.

Prices were higher in moderate trading of American Stock Exchange issues. National Patent Development was the most active issue, up ⅛ to 12⅜. Banister Continental followed, up ⅜ to 13¾. Kewanee Industries was third, off ¼ to 46⅛.

Bank predicts Korea growth

LOS ANGELES — Bright prospects for economic growth in the Republic of Korea (South Korea) are forecast in Focus on Korea, a publication released by Bank of America.

"South Korea lacks many natural resources, but an intelligent and industrious labor force and a well-managed economy have enabled it to weather the problems of worldwide inflation and recession," the report states.

The economic recovery of its two major trading partners — the United States and Japan — should help South Korea's economy to grow at an average annual rate of 9 per cent or more in real terms over the next five years, the report predicts.

Alien worker influx termed just economic

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — Economics, like nature, abhors a vacuum, and the latest evidence is the vast influx of illegal Mexican aliens to help meet the demand for low-wage workers in American farms and workshops.

Economist William Burke, writing in the weekly Business & Financial Letter of the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco, attributes this phenomenon to the "push" of rural overpopulation in Mexico and the "pull" of economic opportunity in the United States, especially in view of the wide gap in wages between the two economies.

Burke notes the U.S. minimum wage is half again as large as the average wage in Mexican manufacturing. He adds, "A sharp increase in migration should have been expected on the heels of last September's devaluation, when the value of the peso dropped from 12½ cents to less than 5 cents.

"And further increases in migration can be predicted on the basis of the forthcoming (January) rise in the U.S. minimum wage to $2.65 an hour, especially considering the continued (10 per cent) decline in the value of the peso over the past year."

Heavy unemployment and underemployment in Mexico, amounting at times to 40 per cent of the nation's labor force, help account for the outward flow.

According to one recent study of illegal aliens, 58 per cent of those surveyed said jobs were easier to find north of the border than in the major Mexican cities.

Moreover 63 per cent of the illegals found work in the United States within 10 days of crossing the border, and another 9 per cent had jobs assured (generally from earlier employers) even before they left Mexico.

For obvious reasons no one knows the exact number of illegal entrants. The number of "undocumented" Mexican aliens apprehended by the Immigration & Naturalization Service jumped from 49,000 in 1965 to 773,000 in 1976, and most experts believe the total number of entrants is three to four times greater than that.

But by these standards, the widely quoted number of 8.2 million illegals (including 5.2 million Mexicans) would be several millions too high.

According to the Fed economist, illegal immigration represents perhaps the most important point of contact of the U.S. and Mexican economies, and yet few empirical studies of the subject have appeared until just the last several years.

"The importance of these studies lies in the fact they sharply challenge the conventional wisdom on the subject of illegal immigration.

"Their authors argue, for example, that the illegals are only temporary migrants rather than permanent U.S. residents, that they don't take jobs away from jobless Americans, and that they can make a significant contribution to both the U.S. and Mexican economies."

Burke quotes a study by MIT Prof. Wayne Cornelius, who surveyed migrant workers in Mexico and found that the vast majority spent only several months in the United States before returning to Mexico. Cornelius noted that only 11 per cent of the illegals remained more than a year in this country.

Migrants typically become agricultural field workers, dishwashers and waiters in restaurants, and unskilled construction workers — jobs involving dirty and difficult tasks, low wages, long hours and low job security.

Apparently, there is little competition from native Americans for such jobs, as several government agencies found last year when they tried to hire U.S. citizens to fill job vacancies created by the apprehension of illegals.

Chino bank declares dividend

The Chino Valley Bank's board of directors has declared a 10 per cent stock dividend to shareholders of record on September 20. The dividend, the second paid by the bank, will be issued on or before October 21, said Warren Steward, president.

Stewart said it was the board's feeling the dividend was justified in light of the bank's continued profitability and growth. The bank opened for business in August of 1974. As of July 31, 1977, the bank's assets were $22.5 million and deposits, $20.5 million. Loans in the community have increased 60 per cent from one year ago and now total $13.4 million.

The bank opened its first branch in Corona last March. In five months, that office has exceeded $2 million deposits.

The permanent building for the bank's Chino main office is scheduled to be completed this month. It is intended to enable the bank to better serve its customers whose accounts now exceed 11,000.

Record results reported

SAN DIMAS (BW) — Herbert Hezlep III, president of Acme General Corp. (NASDAQ/ACME) reported record third-quarter and nine-month results for fiscal 1977.

For the 39 weeks ended July 31, net income increased to $1,496,000, or $1.04 a share, compared to $1,271,000, or 87 cents, in the like period a year ago. Revenues for the nine-month period rose to $21,820,000 compared to $15,311,000 last year, a 43 per cent improvement.

Net income for the third quarter increased to $615,000, or 43 cents, compared to $5,652,000 in the like period a year ago.

Hezlep indicated that Acme General's third-quarter and nine-month results included for the first time a full quarter sales and earnings of Burgess Vibrocrafters Inc., which became a wholly owned subsidiary of Acme General during the second quarter of fiscal 1977.

Hezlep attributed the record nine-month results to several factors including the continuing improvement in the housing and mobile home fields, successful market penetration of the company's consumer product lines to home improvement centers and the profitable operations of Burgess Vibrocrafters.

Hezlep said that the present outlook for the balance of fiscal 1977 looks encouraging as a result of Acme's growing market opportunities.

Union Carbide Linde plants show increase

By midsummer, production of all gas products at Union Carbide's Linde division plants in Fontana and Ontario was up 7 per cent compared to the same period last year, according to an interim report by I.E. Barber, manager.

These included atmospheric gases, hydrogen and methane. Liquid carbon dioxide sales were up nearly 9 per cent, he reported.

"New equipment has been installed to supply Kaiser Steel's needs for more nitrogen," he announced, "and construction of a new oxygen pipeline to the mill started in early July.

"Our employment of nearly 100 people remains about the same," he said. "We expect a modest improvement in sales during the last half of the year, but the employment situation should not change greatly.

Director

OAKLAND (BW) — William R. Gould has been elected a director of Kaiser Steel Corp.

Gould, 57, currently is executive vice president and a director of Southern California Edison Co., which he joined in 1948 as a mechanical engineer.

Expansion under way

A major remodeling and expansion has begun at the Bank of America's Glendora branch.

The $235,000 project, scheduled for completion next February, will include the addition of 2,000 square feet of office space at 115 W. Foothill Blvd.

Changes will include an expanded and remodeled safe deposit section and teller line. Architect is Barmakian-Wolff & Associates of Upland. Contractor is Shepard & Morgan of San Marino.

New Utah squabble over liquor laws

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Drinkers complain that Utah liquor laws — designed under Mormon influence to discourage the consumption of spirits — are harassing and degrading.

But the same laws make it so the weakest cocktail served in Utah is 1.6 ounces, one of the strongest drinks served in any American bistro.

Liquor has been a point of controversy in Utah since the formation of the Utah Liquor Control Commission in 1935 with the end of Prohibition.

The latest squabble pits restaurant owners against commissioners who propose to interpret the law to mean that a restaurant patron cannot purchase a drink until he is seated and has ordered his meal.

Another recent commission ruling — closing state liquor stores at 7 p.m. — was promptly changed because derelicts began hanging around the fancier hotels, where state liquor sales were allowed until 10 p.m.

Law enforcement officials complain the laws have increased the numbers of drunk drivers because any drink sold in Utah comes from 1.6 and 1.75-ounce minibottles. A normal drink is one ounce.

"We serve the biggest drink in the country — liquor by the drunk," said Michael D. Gallivan, director of the state's tourism development agency.

"Tourists think twice about coming back," he said, because of the confusion and inconvenience they experience as a result of the laws.

In all but a select few restaurants, you have to bring your own booze with you in a bag. Then you have to drink it all, because it is illegal to have an open bottle in your car.

At restaurants authorized by the state to sell mini-bottles, you have to walk across the room, buy the mini-bottle, then return to your table to pour the drink yourself. Your waitress could be arrested if she handled the alcohol.

If you decide to purchase a temporary guest membership at one of Utah's 149 private clubs, another proposed regulation would prohibit all but your spouse from accompanying you. And he or she would have to prove it by showing a marriage license.

A Utah resident must submit an application, with references, to the governing board of a club to gain membership and wait a minimum of seven days for approval.

You can't buy a glass of wine in Utah. If you want red wine and your date wants white, you must order two bottles of wine.

"The laws are an absolute joke," said James W. Gilson, attorney for Benihana's Japanese restaurant. "It simply isn't hospitable to be made to feel that if you drink liquor you're a substandard citizen."

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon) successfully rallied opposition to liquor-by-the-drink in a 1968 referendum. Legislators then passed the mini-bottle law.

The church, which bans drinking by its members, supports the state monopoly of liquor and opposes any changes that would encourage more liquor consumption, a spokesman said. Former state Sen. Hughes Brockbank says the church supported the mini-bottle bill after it opposed one he sponsored.

The state's latest attempt to stifle alcohol consumption is a printed sign that must be displayed anywhere liquor is sold: "The consumption of alcholic beverages purchased in this establishment may be hazardous to your health and the safety of others."

But Bob Hutchins, vice president for food and beverage at Snowbird, a resort with a dozen food concessions, said the signs increased sales because they tell people booze may be purchased in places where they didn't know it was available.

Hutchins said Snowbird, a ski resort during winter months, has difficulty competing with large Colorado and Idaho ski resorts because of the liquor laws.

"We spend a lot of time at the front desk alienating guests" trying to explain how d where alcohol can be purchased, he said.

Dennis R. Kellen, acting operations manager of the liquor commission, said all private clubs in Utah must be registered as non-profit organizations.

But he said "almost all" get around that ruling by setting up two corporations — one to lease or rent facilities to the other company, which runs the business and is listed as non-profit.

Kellen said commissioners are hiring auditors to monitor leases and transfer of money from one company to another.

Another requirement, that all private clubs maintain lockers for patrons to store liquor in, is archaic, he said. A spot check of local clubs revealed lockers sit unused in back rooms gathering dust. The law refers to all clubs as "locker clubs."

Kellen said the commission, with a full-time staff of 230, will spend $3.8 million this year administering liquor laws. He said the state grossed $36.2 million in liquor sales last year.

Utah ranks lowest in its annual per capita consumption of alcohol among the 18 states where alcohol is controlled. Utahns and visitors drank .97 gallons of alcohol per capita last year as compared to No. 1 New Hampshire where drinkers consumed 5.45 gallons per person, Kellen said.

WARNING — Chris Collins, a 21-year-old cocktail waitress at the Salt Lake City Hilton Hotel, shows off Utah's newest t-shirt fad. The 1977 Utah Legislature passed a law requiring the warning be posted wherever liquor is sold. Liquor sales are said to be up.

Joyce Brothers

Has fear of reprisal

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: I've been quite friendly with the woman next door and recently she came over with a black eye and a badly bruised face. When I asked her about it, she said she had fallen in the night. I didn't believe this and I let her know. Finally, she broke down and told me that her husband beat her and that he'd been doing this periodically for years. I was shocked and suggested that if she wanted to leave him, my husband and I would do everything we could to help her. She seemed horrified by my suggestion, although she even admits that she doesn't love him. How can any woman today stay with such a man? — R.P.

DEAR R.P.: Many women stay with their husbands out of fear of reprisal either to themselves or their children. Of course, this is almost always a mistake because of the terrible psychological damage to both the woman and her children. The man who threatens further violence if his wife tries to leave is just as apt to commit these same acts in a rage that is set off for some different reason.

Often, the woman who accepts brutality is one who has grown up with it. She has either witnessed her father attack her mother, or she, herself, may have been beaten as a child by either parent or both. In other words, she may have grown up thinking this is what women must endure. She may think this is part of being "a good wife."

Studies indicate that relatively few abused wives are masochists who instigate these attacks, consciously or unconsciously. They may be attracted to violent men, however, because they are reminded of their fathers.

Often such women have so little self-esteem and are so insecure that they can't imagine being able to function on their own. Their fears and anxieties about independence may outweigh their fears of their mates.

You might help her by pointing out that she may get assistance from centers in your neighborhood and that it would be better for her children to live in an atmosphere of relative harmony though she may have to support them by working part-time at even a menial job. You might also suggest that she get some professional counseling and guidance to help her make decisions and plans about her future.

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: On weekends, my boyfriend and I really enjoy our drinking. We're not heavy mid-week drinkers but we're amazed at what happens once Friday night rolls around. I always seem to be able to hold my liquor much better than my boyfriend. This is odd because he's much more sociable than I and is apt to be the life of the party without taking a drink. I'm more withdrawn but I have to come out of my shell to protect him once he starts drinking. Why does alcohol affect us differently? — T.J.

DEAR T.J.: There are many reasons and the pattern isn't always consistent. One person may be affected by three drinks one evening and not even notice the same amount at a different time. It depends upon one's general state of health, how much the person's had to eat, whether or not he's emotionally upset, how much he weighs and a number of other things.

Studies show that introverts, for some reason, seem to be able to hold their liquor much better than extroverts. At least when it comes to mental functions, the limit introvert can drink his personality opposite under the table.

I suggest you both cut down on the amount you drink on weekends. This will help your budget and you'll also be able to enjoy each other's company more. Try to analyze why you seem to feel it necessary to have more than one or two drinks on weekends. It's possible you are trying to obliterate some guilts and anxieties that might be overcome permanently if you just took the time and made the effort to face them head one without the extra drinks.

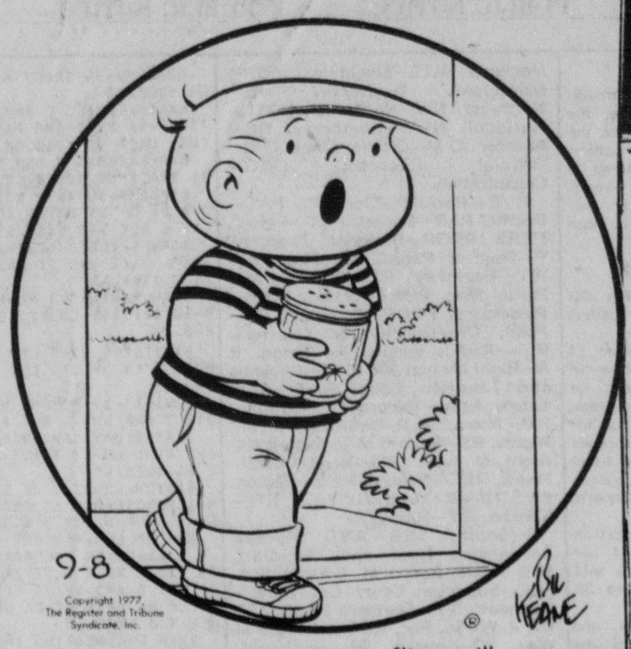
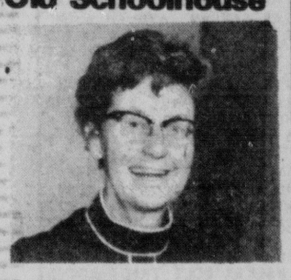
FAMILY CIRCUS



"Mommy, if you swat any flies will you save them for my spider?"

CHALK Talk from Griswold's Old Schoolhouse



Landscaping is progressing, and the Art Fair is coming back to its old interesting collection of arts and crafts. You can now wind along the walks from the Indian Hill, the hotel, past the Smorgasbord, and around the ponds to the Old School House area. Then you can proceed around the entire perimeter of the building, past the U.C. Bank, into Casa Ramon's courtyard, and the courtyards in the rear area, stopping at the glass blower and the ceramic studios, and eventually drift back to "Go" — all the while inspecting the various arts and crafts.

Once inside the building you'll find the new BOOK STORE upstairs. All sorts of interesting old — and new books. Two books about Elvis Presley were sold immediately after his death.

At a fashion show in the California Clothing Mart this week, we saw the new floating materials, laces, and very feminite styles for the coming months. You'll find these styles in FABULOUS PHOENIX, UNCLE OTTO'S, FASHIONS BY GOSH, the FLIGHT BAG and LE PETITE FACTORIE, which has just opened a much larger store — with its addition of yardage and trims. Here's the spot to pick up laces and bits of unusual material.
